PERKINS NAMES BOARD TO MEDIATE STEEL STRIKE; UNION IMMEDIATELY PROMISES FULL CO-OPERATION

TREASURY CHIEF SCORES DEVICES TO DODGE TAXES

Morgenthau, First Witness in Joint Senate-House Quiz, Urges Congress To Plug Loopholes in U. S. Revenue Laws.

RICH GET BENEFIT, SECRETARY HOLDS

Methods Would Look Absurd If Applied to Persons of Small Income, He Says; Precedent Is Bad.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(UP)

The first of a list of names of rich individuals criticized by President Roosevelt for legally but "unethically" avoiding federal income tax payments, will be made public tomorrow by Treasury officials who urged a joint congressional investigating committee today to plug loopholes in the revenue laws.

The disclosure will be made by Elmer Ivey, chief of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who already has dispatched agents to Panama and to the Bahama Islands in search of evidence relating to alleged tax avoidance. It is planned to extend the hunt to Newfoundland and to Prince Edward Island.

The initial revelations will embrace persons who are accused by the Treasury of avoiding federal tax payments by forming personal holding corporations in foreign countries, and near-by islands which do not tax such units. Names of other persons whom the Treasury alleges used other tax avoidance methods will be made public from time to time as the committee explores the various revenue act loopholes.

Morgenthau Testifies.

Only two witnesses—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and his undersecretary, Roswell Magill—appeared today before the six senators and six representatives as the investigation opened in the spacious, gold-curtained house ways and means committee room. Hundreds of curious spectators were on hand as Representative Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, chairman of the joint group, explained the nature of the inquiry.

"We will work zealously to protect the reputations of honest taxpayers," Doughton said. "None but those who used flagrant methods of tax avoidance need to be uneasy."

Waging Uneven Fight.

His gavel fell and Morgenthau, tall, partly bald and wearing a dark blue suit, began reading a long prepared statement. He complained that the government's 2,800 revenue field agents are waging an uneven struggle against 45,000 registered attorneys and tax accountants, many of whom received their early training from the government and who "use the skill they acquired in the service against the younger men who take their places."

"I am not attaching any blame

Youth's Arm Broken In Airplane Propeller

A 17-year-old youth walked into a whirling airplane propeller at Candler airport yesterday afternoon but suffered only a fractured arm.

The youth, Hugh Grantham, of 100 Waters avenue, Hapeville, employee of the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, was admitted to Grady hospital. His condition was reported as not serious.

Grantham was in a tri-motored plane, one of the ships in the Georgia air tour caravan, as the motors were idling. Apparently blinded by rain during the thunderstorm at about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he stepped out of the ship and into one of the propellers. The fact that the propeller was moving at a comparatively slow speed saved his life, airport attaches said.

Bela Kun, Ex-Red Dictator, Reported Executed by Soviet Prominent Communist Leader Ruled Hungary Briefly During 1918.

PARIS, (Friday), June 18.—(U.P.)—Agence Radio, semi-official Paris news agency, reported from Budapest today Bela Kun, onetime Communist dictator of Hungary, had been shot in Russia. Recent reports said the squat, bristling fugitive from most of the countries of Europe was arrested in Moscow.

No reason for the alleged execution was given.

Bela Kun, 54, ruled Hungary with an iron hand for a short time after November, 1918, when he seized power, violently displacing the mild Count Karolyi.

He was overthrown by Admiral Nicholas de Horthy, present regent of Hungary.

Since then Bela Kun built up a reputation as the world's "No. 1 Communist germ-spreader," through his activities in most of the countries of Europe.

He shuttled between Vienna and Bucharest and Budapest, using Moscow as a base. In February, 1936, he was accused by Hungarian authorities of fomenting red intrigues. In March last year he was reported in Spain, organizing the extreme wing of the Popular Front.

He was said to have had a hand in extremist measures in France. No totalitarian country admitted him. Brazil was jittery when he was reported trying to land at Rio de Janeiro last July. London had a scare in February. In 1934, Denmark heard he had crept in, disguised as a woman.

Bela Kun was born near Kolozsvan, Transylvania. He was graduated from the University of Vienna law school. He fought in the Hungarian army and was captured by the Russians in the World War.

BILBAO DEFENDERS BEAT BACK REBELS AT CAPITAL GATES

2,000 Italian Prisoners Captured Along Biscay Bay; Aguirre Reported To Have Fled Capital.

By HARRISON LA ROCHE.

Copyright, 1937, by United Press.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 17.—Thousands of Basques and Asturian anarchists, adopting guerrilla warfare to break the insurgent strangle-hold on Bilbao, were reported tonight to have seized 2,000 Italian prisoners along the Biscay coast.

Meanwhile, from Paris comes word that President Jose Antonio Aguirre and his government have fled from the besieged capital of Bilbao.

Aguirre, reported two days ago as having announced he would remain in the city and "the fighting," said the enemy's assault tonight to have "retired to a village in the neighborhood of Bilbao, the name of which can not be revealed."

He left behind in Bilbao, the delegation said, a defense junta composed of General Juan Urbarril and councillors of the ministers of justice, industry and public works.

The Bilbao defenders, claiming to have thrown back heavy columns of rebels who drove against the city in German style formation, said the enemy's assault continued with undiminished violence but failed to add any new territory.

Column Cut in Half. A rebel column was said to have been cut in half south of the city.

Insurgent dispatches at the frontier said, in contradiction of the Basque claims, that General Davila's legions were driving in closer to the center of the city from every side.

The Italian troops of Davila's "Black Arrows" brigade, striking along the seacoast to capture the Nervion river resort of Las Arenas, were said in Nationalist dispatches to have taken 1,700 prisoners in their swift advance through the fishing towns of Jijona, Lejona and Algorta.

2,000 Italians Captured. Reports of the capture of 2,000 Italians by the Basque and Asturian defenders also reached the Loyalist capital at Valencia but could not be confirmed officially.

President Jose Antonio Aguirre, president of the semi-autonomous Basque republic, informed Madrid that the guerrilla warfare of his troops had inflicted more than 2,000 rebel casualties during the last 24 hours.

Devils Troops Harassed. The Basques, at home in mountain passes that are unfamiliar to their enemies, were said to be breaking up the insurgent advance by harassing Davila's columns from the hills.

General Jose Miaja, chief of the Madrid defense junta, predicted that Bilbao, like Madrid, would

FUNDS COMMITTEE ALLOTS $189,000 IN NEW CITY CASH

Salary Cuts Restored, Other Needs Provided in Report for Council To Consider Monday.

Allocation of $189,000 in revenue and refunding of $1,800,000 worth of bonds at the lowest rate of interest the city ever paid was recommended yesterday by the finance committee at an important session preparing for Monday's council meeting.

Among the actions taken by the committee were:

1. Acceptance of the bid of Atlanta bond brokers and banks to absorb the $1,800,000 worth of bonds to be refunded this year under the terms of the constitutional amendment passed June 8. The interest rate was only 2 1/2 per cent, while the rate on most of the bonds to be refunded is 4 per cent.

2. Allocated $67,000 completely to restore city employees to basic salaries as of July 1.

3. Appropriated an additional $11,000 for the purchase of both a 1,000-gallon pumper and a 100-foot aerial ladder for the fire department. A fund of $14,500 had already been set aside for this equipment.

4. Allocated $38,900 to the school department as its legal 30 per cent share of increased revenues.

5. Allocated $6,333 as the city's part in financing a six-month factual survey of local government departments by a governmental expert. The county and the chamber of commerce have already agreed to assume a similar share.

Though all of the actions taken by the finance committee yesterday are subject to the approval of general council, it was expected the principal part of the program as set out in the new finance sheet will be adopted by council Monday.

Source of Money. A total of $129,902 in new revenue was anticipated yesterday afternoon by the budget commission preceding the finance committee meeting where members voted to transfer $60,000 from the Grady hospital pay roll account, thus bringing the new finance sheet to $189,902. All of this amount was recommended for allocation for salaries, pensions, supplies, repairs and purchases for the various departments.

Increased revenue from ad valorem taxes as anticipated by the factoring company and the telephone company, the city has already collected $22,694 more than had been anticipated and this was put in the budget yesterday to LONDON, June 17.—(UP)—Sir James M. Barrie, 77-year-old playwright and creator of the beloved "Peter Pan," tonight was reported to be sinking rapidly. He is ill of bronchial pneumonia.

Unconscious Boy, in Clutch of Ants, Found in Hole After 24-Hour Hunt

GRAY, Ga., June 17.—(P)—A seven-year-old Jones county boy, lost for 26 hours, was found unconscious in an ant-infested hole in dense woods near Juliette this afternoon.

The boy, Smith Mitchell, was at his home under care of a physician tonight. While his condition was described as "acutely painful," it is not considered serious and he is expected to recover.

The child was found by R. B. Wynens, 55-year-old Hillsboro farmer, who left his post as a WPA foreman to join in the search. He called other members of the searching party and they tried to arouse the child. When their efforts failed they placed young Mitchell on an improvised stretcher and carried him to his home about a mile and a half away.

Search for the boy had been under way for about 24 hours. He was first missed about 1 p. m.

Three Techmen Hurt In Virginia Accident

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Professor Arthur Armstrong, director of athletics at Georgia Tech, Atlanta, was slowly recovering from a dislocated right leg and less serious body injuries tonight in a Georgetown University hospital here after an automobile accident two miles west of Alexandria, Va.

In company with two Tech students, William Moore, 19, and H. B. Boulware, Professor Armstrong was en route to the national intercollegiate tennis matches at Philadelphia when his car crashed into another.

Young Moore's face was badly lacerated and he suffered a possible fracture of the skull. Alexandria hospital authorities said he had a good chance of recovery. Boulware escaped with minor injuries.

Boulware has made letters in football, at end; in basketball and tennis.

Moore teamed with Boulware in many of the Tech matches during the spring.

Amelia Heads Toward Siam After Resting in Calcutta

Black Eagles, Flying at 5,000 Feet, Create Thrill in Ride Over India.

CALCUTTA, June 18.—(Friday)—(P)—Amelia Earhart took off from Dum Dum airport at 8:42 a. m. today (8:42 p. m. Thursday, Atlanta time). For Bangkok, Siam, on the next leg of her flight around the middle of the earth.

From Calcutta to Bangkok, across the Bay of Bengal, the direct line distance is about 1,000 miles.

By AMELIA EARHART

(Copyright, 1937, The Constitution.)

CALCUTTA, India, June 17.—A tourist crossing India at 167 miles per hour is cheered of much. However, I had an unusually varied flight. We left Karachi this morning at 7:34 a. m. (9 p. m. Atlanta time, Wednesday) and reached Calcutta at 4:17 p. m. (5:24 a. m. Atlanta time, Thursday) after passing over Allahabad airport as a check point, a total distance of 1,390 miles.

Low clouds hung about during the beginning of the flight, but these disappeared as we drew near the Sind desert. This is a great barren stretch, with rough ridges running almost at right angles to our course. A southerly wind whipped the sand into the air until the ground disappeared from view in regular "dust bowl" fashion.

We flew along until the ridges grew into mountains and poked their dark backs like sharks through a yellow sea.

Barrier To Sand.

These acted as a barrier to the sand, so we could again see what we were flying over—dry river beds, a few roads connecting villages and then a railroad.

We have been unable to navigate by railroads until today, because none were available, but after central India was passed, there were many. There are also Republic Attorney Says His Firm Will Assist, as Does Official of Inland; Other Two Producers Non-Committal.

GROUP IS NOT GIVEN POWER OF SUBPOENA

Charles P. Taft, Son of Ex-President, Is Made Chairman; Lloyd K. Garrison, McGrady Picked.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(UP)—President Roosevelt moved to bring peace in the steel strike today when Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, acting with his approval, named a three-man board of mediation empowered to investigate and to recommend a settlement.

The board has no compulsory arbitration powers, but it will attempt, through the means at its disposal, to bring warring strikers and steel operators together in a peace conference.

Confers With Leaders. After her announcement, Mrs. Perkins held separate conferences with Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, and John S. Brookes, counsel for the Republic Steel Corporation. Later she announced their pledges of co-operation.

However, appointment of the board made no apparent change in preparations of companies and back-to-work groups to bring the issue to a head by reopening a locked mill.

President Frank B. Rowland, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, declared in Youngstown that he had no comment on the federal board, that his chief interest was in reopening his plants, and that reopening "is, of course, the logical result" as soon as protection of workers can be assured.

John L. Lewis, CIO generalissimo, was non-committal.

May Start Today.

She said the board might begin work in Cleveland tomorrow through one of its three members.

"Our company will co-operate with the new board; we will always co-operate," Brookes said.

"We want to settle this strike as well as anyone else. It is costing us a hell of a lot of money. I think you can say, without a question, that we will co-operate."

Miss Perkins acted swiftly after Governor Martin L. Davis of Ohio, had telegraphed the President the industrial warfare had "gone way beyond" the power of one state. She conferred with Mr. Roosevelt and soon afterward called a

ROUTE DRIVER DIES WHEN TRUCK SKIDS

James L. Gunnin Killed as Vehicle Plunges Down Bank.

James L. Gunnin, 29, of 706 Pierce street, East Point, route driver for The Constitution, was killed when the truck he was driving skidded on wet pavement of the highway three miles west of Lawrenceville and crashed down an embankment at about 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

E. A. Cooper, of Athens, a passenger in the truck, was slightly injured. He was treated at an Athens hospital. Cooper told Sheriff J. P. Mason, of Gwinnett county, that Gunnin lost control of the truck just as it passed over a highway bridge, apparently because of holes in the pavement and slickness of the surface due to wet weather.

The truck crashed through a guard rail, plunged 40 feet down the embankment and landed in a small creek. Gunnin was thrown from the vehicle as it plunged down the bank. Cooper jumped from the vehicle, thus probably saving his life.

Gunnin had been employed by The Constitution about three months. Prior to that time he worked for a bottling company here. He was a native of Crawford, Ga., and moved to East Point about 15 years ago.

He is survived by his wife; two sons, Terry and James L. Gunnin Jr.; his mother, Mrs. E. L. Gunnin; two sisters, the Misses Lucile and Lorine Gunnin and seven brothers, C. L., J. H., A. H., H. R., Robert, Charles E. and Olin Gunnin, all of East Point.

Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the East Point Christian church with the Revs. E. A. Miller, W. G. Carter and A. L. Flury officiating. Burial will be in College Park cemetery, under direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

Traffic Death Toll Declines in Atlanta

A drop in Atlanta's automobile accident death figures as compared to last year is recorded by the United States Census Bureau in its latest mortality summary.

According to the bureau's compilations, there were 32 deaths due to automobile accidents in the city during the 24 weeks ending June 6, while there were 48 in the same period last year. No decrease is shown for the four-week period ending June 6, however. Nine deaths are indicated for the city during the time, both in 1937 and 1936. In the rest of the country, however, the same four-week period showed an increase to 589 from 578 in 1936.

Augustus Lindbergh Jr., arrived today from New York to visit her parents at Markgroeningen, near Stuttgart.

GIRL SPURNS LOVE, MAN HELD KILLER

Alabama, Himself Wounded, to Face Murder Charge.

DOTHAN, Ala., June 17.—(AP)—Sheriff Alex May tonight planned to charge Dick Turner, 32, with the knife murder of Miss Leslie Enfinger, 21, if the man recovers from serious stab wounds.

Coroner B. C. Williams said he believed the slain girl's wounds resulted from a spurned offer of marriage. Turner refused to marry the woman and was proposed, Williams said he was told.

Mays said J. T. Turner, brother of the dead woman, told him the pair apparently were quarreling and then began scuffling. His sister screamed and neighbors found the girl dead and Turner wounded.

THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES
Sally Sawyer

When one sits down to luncheon or dinner these hot summer days, nothing is more tempting to the eye and appetite than a cool, refreshing beverage.

Cold drinks, you will agree, depend for their appeal almost as much on sight and sound as they do on flavor. White frost should cover the outside of the glasses and from inside you should hear the cheerful tinkle of ice. The plainest drink, appetizing and gay, may be made by using a few raspberries, cherries, sliced strawberries, or a sprig of mint for decoration.

In order to obtain the full refreshing flavor of the cooling beverage, especially those in which fruit juices are used, serve them as soon as they are prepared. By allowing them to stand too long, a loss of flavor often results.

Colored ice cubes, made by adding a little pure food coloring to water before filling ice trays, will add a decorative touch to your beverages. A maraschino cherry frozen in the ice cube is another effective way of making a drink more attractive.

Here is a list of several delicious thirst quenchers which will help revive you when your spirits falter on a drowsy summer afternoon or breathless evening.

Frosted Grape Juice Whip.
1 liberal scoop of vanilla ice cream.

3-4 cup grape juice.
Whip together until ice cream is thoroughly dissolved. Serve either with or without straws. Perhaps the combination of ginger ale and grape juice is not new to you. But it is still as good as the first day these two popular beverages were blended. Combining equal parts of chilled grape juice and ginger ale results in a most delicious and refreshing drink.

Grape Gingerale.
1 pint grape juice.
2 tablespoons granulated sugar.
1-2 cup lemon juice.
1 quart dry ginger ale.
Combine the grape juice and sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the lemon juice and chill. Just before serving, add the ginger ale. Serves six.

Grape Eggnog.
6 eggs, well beaten.
3 cups chilled grape juice.
1 tablespoon granulated sugar.
Combine the eggs and sugar and beat 1 minute. Add chilled grape juice, stir well and pour into glasses. Makes 4-1-2 cups and serves 6.

Iced tea has always been a popular summer drink, but one can grow tired of it if served too often. Here is a recipe for grape iced tea which is decidedly different, yet truly refreshing.

Grape Iced Tea
3 teaspoons tea.
3 cups boiling water.
2 cups pure grape juice
4 tablespoons sugar.

Pour the boiling water over the tea, cover closely and allow to stand 15 minutes. Then strain, add sugar, lemon juice and the pure grape juice. Chill thoroughly. Some hostesses prefer to omit the lemon juice, just adding the pure grape juice to the iced tea.

Iced Coffee.
Prepare coffee double strength and while still hot pour over crushed ice to cool. Sugar syrup and cream should be served as accompaniments to this beverage. If frozen coffee cubes are used in place of chipped ice, make the coffee for both the cubes and the beverage in the same manner as you would for every meal, using the usual proportions of water and coffee.

Mint Julep.
1 cup lemon juice.
1 bunch fresh mint.
1-2 cups sugar.
1-2 cup water.
3 pints ginger ale.

Ice.
Add mint leaves, sugar and water to lemon juice. Let stand 30 minutes. Pour over a large piece of ice and add ginger ale. Garnish each serving with a sprig of fresh mint dusted with powdered sugar.

Old-Fashioned Lemonade.
4 lemons.
2 cups sugar.
1-2 cup water.
Cut lemons in thin slices, place in a bowl, and cover with sugar. Mash thoroughly until all juice is extracted. Add water. Let stand one hour. Allow one or two tablespoons of the strained lemon juice to each serving. Pour into glass filled with shaved ice and fill with water. Garnish with maraschino cherry and slice of lemon.

Frosted Coffee.
Make coffee according to your usual method. Chill. Put a small scoop of chocolate or vanilla ice cream in each glass and pour on the coffee. Stir until ice cream is melted. Serve at once. A topping of whipped cream may be added if desired.

Punch.
1 pint grape juice
1-3 cup lemon juice
1-3 cup orange juice
1 cup granulated sugar
4 cups water or 2 cups water and 2 cups sparkling water
Combine the grape juice, lemon and orange juices and sugar, and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the water, and serve very cold. If sparkling water is used, add just before serving. Makes about 7 cups.

ents which have been mixed together. Cook slowly and stir constantly with a fork until the eggs are creamy and thick.

1-4 cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons catsup
2 tablespoons chopped pickles
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1-8 teaspoon salt
Mix and chill the ingredients. Serve on lettuce or tomato salad.

1 teaspoon vanilla
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk

DEMOCRATS SPLIT
OVER RELIEF LOAD

Robinson Breaks With Colleagues With Proposal of 75-25 Cost Sharing.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—Democratic ranks in the senate split today over a proposal by Majority Leader Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, that more of the federal relief load be shifted to state and local governments.

Advanced as a compromise in the three-day fight over the administration's $1,500,000,000 relief bill, Robinson's amendment to require 25 per cent local contributions toward WPA work projects fed new flames of controversy. Senator Schwelbach, Democrat, Washington, quickly criticized it as a Republican system. Robinson attacked.

Other senators, favoring a continued free hand for the President in making relief expenditures, joined in the attack. Robinson, contending the "time has come to safeguard the credit of the treasury," submitted the amendment as a substitute for a controverted proposal by Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, to require 40 per cent contributions.

Robinson's proposal aligned him with economy advocates in opposition to senators normally quick to follow his leadership. Robinson, submitting his amendment, said Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, had "done a wonderful work," but added, "conditions now are different." Unlike the Byrnes amendment, federal relief program was launched. "General Prosperity." "We have a condition of general prosperity," he asserted. "The time has come, if we are to safeguard the credit of the Treasury, to require those able to do so to contribute a reasonable amount."

His amendment was drafted after consultation with Byrnes and submitted on behalf of the appropriations committee, which recommended the 40 per cent requirement over Hopkins' opposition. The majority leader said "no project found by the President to be necessary would be barred."

Will Intercede for Reinstatement of Commission of Ensign
"Kicked Out" Because He Married While a Cadet; Wife Wants Divorce.

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Marguerite Barry Woolard, of New York, said today she was prepared to rush to Washington "at any minute" to intercede for reinstatement of the commission of her daughter's husband, Charles A. Nash Jr., of Saginaw, Mich. Nash lost his ensign's commission June 3 when naval authorities ordered it revoked after they discovered he had married Beulah Kathleen Woolard, popular Norfolk (Va.) society girl, prior to his graduation from Annapolis. His commission gone, Nash also faced the prospect of losing his bride, when she announced earlier today plans to divorce him or have the marriage annulled.

At her New York home, Mrs. Woolard said she would "leave no stone unturned to see that this boy has his commission reinstated."

"I'm not going to see a home wrecked by a thoughtless, young girl's action," she asserted. "I have talked with Mrs. Nash (Charles' mother) by long-distance telephone and she is heart-broken."

Meanwhile, the Mrs. Woolard's daughter was prepared to leave Baltimore, Md., for Kalamazoo, Mich., where she announced she would seek either a divorce or an annulment.

Since her daughter's action Mrs. Woolard said she had not talked with her. "I haven't talked to her and I don't want to," she declared.

The Robinson proposal would not employed there. They declared they would continue picketing and will prevent the remaining 20 workers from returning until they themselves, have been reinstated.

NEW LABOR TILTS
TROUBLE DALTON

Sit-Down, Picketing Crop Up in Two Places.

DALTON, Ga., June 17.—While Dalton breathed a sigh of relief today over the prospective settlement of labor difficulties in one quarter, new troubles cropped up in two other sectors.

The day's developments: 1. The four-month-old strike of approximately 550 workers at the Dalton plant of the American Thread Company moved slowly toward a settlement, which is expected to be reached tomorrow.

Picket lines meanwhile were maintained, pending an expected vote on the proposed agreement. 2. About 70 men and women halted work shortly before noon today at the plant of the O'Jay Spread Company, and folded their hands for a sit-down strike for shorter hours and higher wages.

They had locked themselves in the plant tonight. They now work 10 hours a day, their spokesman said, and receive from $6 up per week for piecework. 3. The WPA sewing room here was picketed today, following the laying off of 32 of the 52 women employed there. They declared they would continue picketing and will prevent the remaining 20 workers from returning until they themselves, have been reinstated.

Other officials elected were: George W. Hutton, Iowa, first vice president; William E. Wellmann, of Baltimore, Md., second vice president; George S. Smith, of Memphis, Tenn., third vice president; W. G. Lamping, of Denver, Colo., fourth vice president; E. E. Pfaff, of San Francisco, fifth vice president.

Frank Haag and John W. Scharf, both of St. Louis, Mo.; James Finnigan, of Chicago, Ill.; and J. I. Dixon, of Dallas, Texas, were elected directors for terms of two years each. T. S. Logan, of St. Louis, Mo., secretary-treasurer for 27 years, continues in office, having been elected in 1936 for two years.

MILL WORKER HELD IN LINEMAN'S DEATH

MARIETTA, Ga., June 17.—Otto Sanders, 22, a mill worker, was held in the Cobb county jail here today, following the death of James Warren Ellrod, 26, a telegraph lineman, of head wounds received in an altercation Saturday night at a roadside a mile south of here.

Ellrod, whose injuries at first were not considered serious, was taken to an Atlanta hospital Tuesday and died Wednesday night. Sheriff E. M. Legg said Ellrod was struck with a brick or rock, but Deputy Dewey Gable, following the arrest, quoted Sanders as admitting he struck Ellrod with his fist.

Ellrod, who is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ellrod, two sisters and six brothers, will be buried tomorrow.

SCHOOL IS LAUNCHED
BY GARDEN LOVERS

Personality in Flowers Is Discussed by Mrs.
R. A. Wodell.

ATHENS, Ga., June 17.—(AP)—Mrs. R. A. Wodell, of Short Hills, N. J., told the second annual University of Georgia garden school here tonight that "flowers have personality."

Discussing "flower arrangement," she said the personality of flowers "is emphasized by the selection of suitable containers."

"By proper placing, flower arrangements make a room inviting; too many arrangements of one type suggest firework."

About 300 Present. The two-day school, sponsored by the Garden Club of Georgia and the university, opened this morning. About 300 garden lovers from all parts of the state were present.

Roy Bowden, of the university greenhouses, said at the afternoon session "A balanced fertilizer program, balanced spray program, the necessary 'ph' in the soil for a given plant, the proper moisture for any given plant, proper drainage and sunlight are the fundamental principles involved in ornamental plant production and the fundamentals that should be recognized by any judge serving in a flower show."

Dahlia Culture. H. L. Cochran, of the Georgia Experiment Station, said plenty of sunshine and water are essential to the growing of dahlias. A sandy loam type of soil is most suitable for them, he said.

During the morning, Mrs. Wodell discussed "Silhouettes, Shadow Boxes and Still Life," and Mrs. Donald Hastings, president of the club, spoke on rose cultivation.

Carl E. Mittell, director of the department of fine arts at the university, discussed "Sculpture in the Garden."

Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university, and Mrs. M. P. Jarnagan, of the Athens club, welcomed the visitors.

REALTORS TO AWARD

MACON, Ga., June 17.—(AP) The agent completing the most outstanding real estate transaction of 1937 will receive a loving cup from Georgia's Real Estate Association for his achievement.

This award was announced here at the second conference of officers and directors of the association, and will be known as the Alvin Cates trophy. It was donated by an Atlanta firm.

William Gilbert, of Savannah, state president, said the annual convention will be held at Savannah in late November or early December, with the host board to announce the date. He said a third conference of officers and directors would be held in September in Macon.

HIDDEN RIFLEMEN KILL MINE OFFICIAL; TROOPS ARE ASKED

Tennessee Governor Orders Inquiry; Non-Union Labor Works Pit.

JAMESTOWN, Tenn., June 17. (AP)—Hidden riflemen shot and killed Casper H. Woods, 25, general manager of the Zenith coal mine, today in a renewal of violence which has broken out spasmodically since the mine reopened March 8 with non-union labor. Woods died instantly from a bullet wound in the back of his head, received as he rode to work in a truck driven by Thomas Ross, 18, commissary clerk, who was cut by flying glass from the windshield. Sheriff Wilford Smith wired

Income Tax Fees Show Heavy Gain

An increase of 185 per cent over the corresponding period of last year was reported yesterday for income tax collections in Georgia during the first 15 days in June by Frank B. Boyce, assistant collector of internal revenue for the state.

The amount was $2,495,650.74, Boyce stated, which is $1,619,732 more than was collected from June 1 through June 15, 1933.

Governor Browning at Nashville a request for national guardsmen to patrol the mine area, located about 10 miles from here.

The sheriff, who was wounded in both legs by ambushers on the day the mine reopened, advised the Governor he is incapacitated and said local officers are unable to handle the situation.

Governor Browning directed Adjutant General Raymond O. Smith to "ascertain what is to be done and report to me."

Smith said three rifle bullets struck the back of the truck. "I guess about 25 shots were fired by the snipers," Ross said. He added that the bullets came from both sides of the highway, which runs along a thickly wooded section.

did reward," he declared. "But, when on top of that the sponsors are going to spend a large sum of money in producing and filming these tests also to be sent to Hollywood, I can not help but feel that the present opportunity is an exceptional one for all Atlantans and Georgians."

There is still time to send in applications for the screen and sound tests.

The applications may be made only by letter, addressed to:

"The Talent Scout,
"The Atlanta Constitution."

The application should include the candidate's full name and address, age and description. Past experience, if any, should be outlined briefly.

Applicants will be notified when to report for preliminary interviews and those who pass these interviews will then be instructed when to report for rehearsals.

John T. Toler Is 'Feature Story' To Paper Covering Convention

Milwaukee Sentinel Recounts History of Constitution's Circulation Manager, 'Still in Circulation' and Back in City After Visit 30 Years Ago.

John T. Toler, circulation manager of The Constitution, has turned out to be a prophet not without honor. But it was for the Milwaukee Sentinel to see his feature story possibilities. Mr. Toler left here last Saturday to attend a convention of circulation managers in that city, and is due back in Atlanta Monday.

Mr. Toler, under whose direction the circulation of The Constitution has for many years exceeded that of other Atlanta papers by an appreciable margin, was a charter member of the International Circulation Managers' Association, and has been active in its affairs since its organization in 1899.

On Board 20 Years.

He was president of the body in 1933, and prior to that time had held every elective office in the association, including service of more than 20 years on the board of directors. He has attended practically every convention of the group in its history.

Here is the story carried by the Milwaukee paper:

"John T. Toler, Atlanta, Ga., is still in circulation. Thirty years ago he attended the convention of the International Circulation Managers' Association in Milwaukee as circulation manager of the Memphis, Tenn., News-Scimitar. Sunday night he arrived here to attend the same association's convention as circulation manager of The Atlanta Constitution.

"Milwaukee hasn't changed much," he said. "It looked like a big city then, but it certainly looks like a much bigger city now."

Recalls 1907 Session.

"In 1907, he recalled, he and most of the other delegates carried their grips to the hotel where the convention was held. There were no taxicabs in those days.

"Nor were circulation managers the 'big shots' they are now. Mr. Toler recalled. They were humble 'superintendents of circulation, then, and their main problem was to count out papers to newsboys and get the out-of-town copies on the midnight train. Now they are concerned with promotion, organization, production and collection, and have to operate a fleet of trucks besides.

"They were reticent in convention sessions in those days, for they didn't want contumacious remarks to get back to the boss. Now they say what they please, and go back home and fight it out.

"Our chief problem then was to keep expenses down," said Mr.

VOTED PAY RAISES

tive for the school year starting in September.

In addition to raising salaries, the board also voted to pay faculty members who teach in the system's summer school. The change, which returns to the system in use before the board of regents was established, means that faculty members who do not wish to teach in summer schools will not be required to do so.

Under the new policy, teachers will be paid in 12 monthly installments on the basis of nine months' work.

The salary increases, which will affect about 700 persons, were divided into two groups, one for the senior (four year) colleges, the Lumpkin Law school, at Athens, and the medical school at Augusta and the other junior (two year) colleges.

The minimum salaries for the senior colleges and the law and medical schools follow:

Professors, $2,700; associate professors, $2,100; assistant professors, $1,800; and instructors, $1,350.

Minimum Established.

The minimum salaries for junior colleges are: Professors, $1,800 to $2,700; assistants, $1,200 to $2,000; and instructors $600 to $1,350.

The regents voted to leave in the hands of the heads of various institutions increases for professors and others already making the minimum salary.

The salary increases will become effective September 1.

The board also re-elected faculty members and heads of the colleges for the year beginning September 1.

MOTHER ADMITS 'PICNIC' SLAYING

Slew Daughter to Make Room for Lover.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., June 17. (AP)—Mrs. Helen Tiernan, 28, brought her trial for the slaying of her seven-year-old daughter to an abrupt end tonight by pleading guilty to a charge of second degree murder, soon after the state rested its case.

The surprise plea of the blonde New York widow who allegedly plotted the deaths of her two children to make room for a lover in her three-room flat, came as a special night session began in Suffolk county court.

The child slain, tiny Helen Tiernan, was found stabbed, beaten, and burned in a picnic grove near Brookhaven, Long Island. The other child, Jimmy, aged four, was unconscious when searchers stumbled over his body, but is recovering in a hospital.

Farm for Selassie? No! Court Declares

DELHI, N. Y., June 17. (UP)—To convert Haile Selassie, former emperor of Ethiopia, into a Delaware county "gentleman farmer" is the ambition of Lyman W. White, of Delhi. White wants to deed a farm to the "Conquering Lion of Judah," but has been checked by a prior contract involving the property. Attorneys are attempting to untangle the legal snarl.

The trial began Monday and the state rested at today's session after reading into the record Mrs. Tiernan's admission of guilt.

She faces a sentence of 20 years to life imprisonment.

COURT SETS DATES OF KILLING TRIALS

'Crime Tourist' Is Declared Sane; Must Face Court June 24.

LONOKE, Ark., June 17.—(AP)—Certified as sane by physicians at the state hospital for nervous diseases, Lester Brockelhurst, charged with hitch-hiking killings in three states, faced Judge W. J. Waggoner in circuit court here again late today and heard his trial on a first degree murder charge reset for next Thursday, June 24.

He has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of killing Victor A. Gates, Little Rock landowner, near here last May 5 when, the state alleges, he and his sweetheart-traveling companion, Bernice Felton, 18, were given a lift by the Little Rock man.

Trial of the girl, jointly charged with murder, and who has pleaded innocent, was set by the court this afternoon for Friday, June 25. She recently obtained a severance and the right of separate trial.

Insurance Executives' Gift Honors Retiring President

Baxter Maddox (left) is shown receiving a billfold from Henry Powell (right) on behalf of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association as he completed a year as president of the body yesterday. Between them is Charles Chalmers, newly elected successor to Mr. Maddox.

Chester Turner, Convict Fugitive, Surrenders After Mother's Plea

"I've Got Enough of This Business of Running Around and Am Ready To Finish Time and Go Straight," He Tells Officers.

Chester Gilmore Turner, 19-year-old escaped convict, has "got enough of this business of running around" and is now ready to finish serving his sentence and go straight.

So he told City Detectives Leo Nahlik and M. M. Coppenger yesterday when the two brought him to police headquarters after he had surrendered earlier in the morning.

The young convict denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of his 17-year-old sister, Mrs. Leroy Manders, who disappeared from her home Tuesday.

"I didn't even know sister was gone until mother told me yesterday," he said.

Mrs. Manders was believed kidnapped while en route from her home to work.

Denies Recent Crimes.

The brother of Forrest Turner, escape artist, vigorously denied also that he was an occupant of the car which participated in a gun battle with county officers last week in College Park, in which his brother, H. L. Turner, was killed. He likewise denied he was a participant in the recent holdups and robberies in that section, which police believe were the work of Turner and Baker.

"I've been alone in the north Georgia mountains since my escape," he said, "so how could I have done all this robbing and these holdups I'm accused of?"

Read of Brother's Death.

"I didn't even know of the death of H. L. until Monday when I picked up an old newspaper and read of it. And only yesterday (Wednesday) did I find out about sister's disappearance."

The 19-year-old youth, his brother, H. L., and Baker were objects of an intensive hunt by police.

Last week H. L. Turner was slain in a gun battle with county officers in College Park while the two other occupants of the car, believed to have been Vincent Baker and Chester Turner, made a successful getaway. Baker is still at large.

Mother Arranged Surrender.

Turner's surrender was arranged by his mother, Mrs. J. M. Turner, of Hapeville.

Yesterday morning she sent a note to a neighbor asking her to call city police and tell officers to be at the Turner home at 10 o'clock.

At about 11 o'clock Chester arrived, shook hands with the officers, and announced he was "ready to go."

So ended a 10-day hunt which was featured by Mrs. Turner's plea that her son come back and surrender and "start all over again."

Escaped Twice.

Chester made his first break from the Cherokee county gang with six others on April 2, 1936. On May 23 he made his second escape with eight more prisoners.

"Why did I break away? Well, I just couldn't stand by and watch the other fellows go and leave me

TVA, CHATTANOOGA SIGN POWER PACT

City Votes $100,000 Issue to Finance Distribution Survey.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 17.—(AP)—The Chattanooga Electric Power Board, representing the city, entered into a 20-year contract with the Tennessee Valley Authority for electricity today, including negotiations which have been in progress for more than a year.

James Lawrence Fly, chief counsel here, said it was accepted by the power board, headed by Colonel Harold C. Fiske.

"Unless some extraordinary obstacle intervenes I am confident we will be able to furnish low-cost power to Chattanooga within a year," Fiske said.

The city commission this afternoon authorized the immediate issuance of $100,000 in general obligation bonds to be sold July 8 for financing a survey preliminary to construction of purchasing a distributing system.

Old War Debts Could Pay Relief For Year--Borah

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, noted in the senate today the money owed the United States in war debts would pay next year's relief costs if it were possible to collect.

Borah remarked the government proposed to appropriate $1,500,000,000 for relief. He added war debts past due totaled $1,530,000,000.

Borah then inserted in the Congressional Record a newspaper editorial entitled "Finland and the Dead Beasts."

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 18, 1937.

THE RISING TIDE
The rising tide of new prosperity swells anew with the forthcoming disbursement of more than $4,000,000 in dividends to be paid by Georgia companies on July 1. This money will go to thousands of stockholders, to stay a little while in their purses and bank accounts, but soon to find its way into the channels of retail trade and thence to the salaries of employees and back to the factories in the form of orders for more of their products.

The significant thing about these dividend payments, after the evidence they supply of the return of full industrial and commercial prosperity, is the manner in which they reveal the widespread ownership of the firms who pay them. Many thousands of stockholders represent the ownership of these activities.

There is nothing which makes for stability more strongly than division of ownership of property. It has frequently been said, truthfully, that the most rabid of collectivists becomes a believer in individual property rights when he buys his own home.

It is equally true that there will be little disruption of industrial and commercial activities when the plants and stores and organizations are owned by many stockholders. The employee of a factory who is likewise, through his stock holdings, a part owner of that factory feels it is his own prosperity he enhances by loyal and painstaking work.

Multiple ownership by stock possession not only spreads the earnings, in the form of dividends, over many beneficiaries, but it insures satisfied workers and protection from economic or social unrest.

The more generally the people of Georgia are enabled to buy the stock of Georgia industry the more stable and contented will become the workers in industry.

Distribution of earnings to the true owners of industry, that considerable part of the general public which holds industrial shares, is the American way to orderly public ownership of the machines of production.

BETTER COTTON FOR BIGGER RETURNS
Speaking before the Georgia Cotton Ginners' Association, G. M. Lester, of Mississippi, president of the National Ginners' Conference, urged production of longer staple and better quality cotton as the best means to meet the world competition from other producing countries.

Pointing out that better grades bring the farmer larger net profits, Mr. Lester said the markets of the world are seeking primarily long staple cotton. "The world trade doesn't need the lower grades of cotton staple as much as it requires the improved grades," he said.

Exports of cotton have been handicapped by tariff and fiscal policies which have resulted in penalizing the southern grower. As a result, there has been a rapidly developing cotton production in many other countries which enjoy cotton-growing climate. Thus the southern states of the United States have largely lost their monopoly on this staple and, unless reform in production methods and costs are achieved, the southern farmer is apt to find his chief cash crop largely taken from him.

World competition would be felt, first, in Texas and the cotton states west of the Mississippi, which now supply the bulk of American export cotton. Georgia and the eastern states find their markets chiefly among the mills in this country.

Wiping out of the export trade, or even continued reduction, will inevitably be reflected in the price and thus the producer of domestic cotton will surely feel the effect of a glutted domestic market.

As Mr. Lester says, the best method of retaining, or increasing, the world demand for American cotton is to make it so superior to that grown in other countries that it will demand a premium in price and be sought by all buyers.

One of the surest ways to improve the cotton staple is by concentrating on one variety. Last year Georgia farmers alone realized a premium of $1,500,000 on their one-variety cotton. E. C. Westbrook, cotton specialist for the Georgia Extension Service, emphasizes that cotton ginners must take the lead in sponsoring and encouraging the one-variety plan in their own communities.

That they will do this is certain. For the ginners realize that their interests and the interests of the cotton farmers are identical. When the farmer prospers the ginner prospers and co-operation between the two works to their mutual advantage.

We're all looking ahead to the day when a pug gets into the Spanish fighting without a permit and the New York state boxing board has to suspend the war.

An acrobat with a southern circus can turn his head completely around. Not many are so beautifully equipped to keep track of Amelia Earhart.

"Figures show there are still 50,000 gypsies in Spain." Well, there never was a time when a future was easier to read, with or without tea leaves.

CANDLEWICK WORKERS AND SECURITY
Congressman Malcolm C. Tarver, of the seventh Georgia district, has requested Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering to exempt workers on candlewick bedspreads in this state from social security payments.

Any attempt to collect levies for old-age pensions, unemployment or other benefits under the social security laws from these workers of northwest Georgia would be unjust. It is a striking example of a law, excellent in its general application, but an anachronism in a particular instance.

Candlewick bedspreads are made by women in their homes. Many of them make the spreads for companies which furnish the material and pay the women on a piece-work basis. The difficulties in determining the amount of earnings of any individual worker are insurmountable.

The women do the work in their spare time. Several may work on the same spread and, in many instances, one woman may work on spreads for different manufacturers in the same day.

In other cases the women make the spreads independently, selling them to passers-by on the highway who are attracted by the displays in front of the country homes.

The industry brings in several million dollars of "extra money," annually to that section of Georgia. It furnishes part-time employment which provides welcome addition to the family incomes of approximately 15,000 women.

If these women are to be included in the workers subject to the social security laws the result is foregone. It means destruction of their industry and taking from them their chief opportunity for profitable part-time work.

Exemption of the candlewick bedspread makers of Georgia from the social security laws can be construed as letting down the bars to the establishment of home sweat shops by unscrupulous operators in general industry.

IMPROVING GEORGIA LAND
Farmers of Georgia are "soil conservation conscious," and there is a state-wide determination to improve the fertility of Georgia soil, according to Dr. H. P. Stuckey, head of the state experiment station.

Dr. Stuckey does not blame the tenant farmer system for depletion of Georgia soil values. Instead, he lays the cause for failure to conserve the land upon the poor economic circumstances of farmers as a class. They "just didn't have the money" to practice soil conservation, he states.

Improving economic conditions, however, have changed this situation and today the farmers are seeking ways and means for returning to the land, the capital of their enterprise, that strength which will bring higher yields and increased income.

Conservation of the soil is a far-flung problem which reaches from the little gulley in a quiet Georgia field to the flood-devastated areas of the Mississippi basin and the wind-ravaged deserts of the midwest. It embraces in its fundamentals depletion of the forest areas, failure to follow proper agricultural practices, and reckless disregard of the laws of nature. It provides conditions under which the raging waters of the floods and the whirling dust storms may be leashed.

To restore the land to that fertility which, in ages past, was a wonder of the world, and to prevent recurrence of major disasters from flood and hurricane, calls for a combination of wide activities. There must be reforestation over large areas, there must be proper management and conservation of the forests that now stand and there must be an end to that erosion of the soil which has washed much of the rich top covering of the fields into the rivers and streams, to pour unchecked, into the lost reaches of ocean.

The efforts of the individual farmer in proper terracing of his land and other soil conservation methods are linked with the great undertakings in forestry and flood control to be undertaken by the state and federal governments.

Editorial of the Day

ALIEN DEPORTATION
(From the Kansas City Star.)
The alien question in this country has now, as in the past, a direct bearing on law enforcement. In cases of crimes committed by aliens the government's deportation powers offer a convenient and reasonable way out. The extension of this power to additional crimes is provided in the Dies bill passed last week by the house of representatives.

This has nothing to do with the demagogic game of alien baiting. There is no question that the alien problem has been exaggerated and distorted. In 1935 the commissioner of immigration's report indicated fewer than 5,000,000 un-naturalized aliens in the United States. Of that number about 1,500,000 had taken out their first naturalization papers. The report indicated a moderate drop from the 1930 census figures.

Representative Dies, of Texas, sponsor of the current bill, started his campaign as a means of relieving unemployment through deportation of 8,000,000 aliens.

Only a little more than 9,000 aliens were deported last year. The two principal arguments for deportation in recent years have related to unemployment and Communist activities. Neither had an important part in the past administration and there is no reason to expect a change in the immediate future.

There is no legal method of deportation that could dispose of enough aliens to affect the employment situation. Only a far-fetched interpretation could make drastic use of the law against a political creed that offered a legal ticket in the national election last fall. For their fundamental purposes the deportation laws should be improved and enforced within reason.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

"WANDERING JACK" WASHINGTON, June 17.—"Wandering Jack" Garner will soon be back to knit the raveled sleeve of administrative cares. He doesn't know it yet, but a high-power, direct-by-mail campaign already has been planned to wring his heart and turn his wayward steps toward Washington.

If he doesn't melt at the first of the series of sales-letters, a real, signed-in-ink appeal from the head of the firm is being reserved for the clincher.

Before that happens, his intimate friends say, his vacation will be over anyway, and he'll be ready to turn the prow of his 16-cylinder cruiser northward.

CONGRESSMEN ARE CHORTLING Right now, some of the Democratic congressmen who have been getting queries from home over the alleged "break" between the President and his right-hand man on the Hill are chortling. They have decided that the Vice President's absence is going to do more good than harm to party solidarity.

This is how they explain it: "Jack" is the one man in the government who actually links the executive and administrative branches, the only member of congress who sits in an cabinet meetings. He is the buffer. The Vice President gone, the executive end for the first time gets the real shock, head-on and no cushion.

The President is going to realize, the chortlers predict, that congress has got to be handled with gloves from now on, if it is to be handled at all.

MAKING NO PROGRESS The friction on the Hill is so bad that you can see the ballbearings smoke at every hearing.

Despite that good old prosecuting attorney mettle of Senator Hugo L. Black, the wages and hours bill isn't sliding along at all.

A SURPRISE PACKAGE Incidentally, congressmen raised their eyebrows when they read the stories about the terrific blow that the death of Representative Connelly would mean to the wages and hours bill.

They are full of praise for the late congressman from Massachusetts, but—

Neither he nor Senator Black saw that particular proposal before it was handed to them, with all the "is" dotted and the "it's" crossed.

OBJECT TO METHOD Some of the members of congress, by the way, who have complained most about their diet of predigested legislation, admit that it's the method of serving rather than the dish itself that they object to. And they just "ain't a-goin' to stand for it no more!" They mean it this time.

TWO GHOSTS RETURN Two old, familiar ghosts were present, but not noted, at the President's recent press conference when he talked for 20 minutes on the subject of raising the purchasing power of the low-income groups.

One was the "forgotten man," who is to receive more attention in a new "fireside" chat. He has got a little out of touch with Washington since the court fight became such a distracting issue.

The other is a matter about which another forgotten man, former Governor Landon, chided the President for neglecting—conservation of national resources (national planning). Some of the states (including Vermont) are running 'way ahead of the federal government in long-time planning—especially in regard to land use. The President's informal remarks were taken to be a prologue for more on that subject, with emphasis on human resources, perhaps, likewise over the air.

THOSE GARNER PALS When Mr. Garner does return from that fishing trip, it is understood he will go right on attending ball games with anti-New Dealers when he wants to. No further hints to the effect that a Vice President shouldn't be seen in such mixed company will be offered by amateur "spokesmen," or otherwise.

The Art of Rumination.
From B. F. Keller, of Greenville, Ga., comes a fascinating essay "The Art of Rumination." His rules, he admits, are according to standards laid down by Uncle Remus. His prescription follows:

"First, it is very necessary that you have a day's work. Makes no difference what kind, just so the body is tired. Next, it should be in late evening, from early twilight until as late as you choose.

It should be after a supper of either cold chicken or country ham with red gravy, hot biscuits, a quart of good buttermilk right out of the well, with a few left-overs from the dinner meal, such as strawberry shortcake, etc. (This is country folks supper—we still have dinner at noon.)

"The place should be under a nice shady oak tree in the backyard, seated in either a straight or rocking chair with cowhide bottom. Plenty of good cut plug tobacco and either a cob or clay pipe. A couple of so hounds lying near by."

If This Plan Doesn't Bring Results—
Mr. Keller continues: "Would like to say that if anyone who will try this method of rumination doesn't feel, after a few evenings, that this is a better world in which to live and that his neighbors are lots better folks than he had given them credit for being, I would suggest that they call the druggist. Have him send them about 10 or 15 grains each of blue mass and calomel. Take it at one dose and while convalescing open the family Bible and read the first chapter the eye falls on.

"Get a cheerful look on the face and go to see old or sick persons. Go to see more than one—the more the better. Then get back to your place and count your blessings.

"I would like to suggest that a Rumination Club be organized." Thanks, Mr. Keller.

The Holiday Was a Success.
Friends at Madison, Ga., requested some time ago information on the things to see and the things to do on a vacation in New York. Suggestions were made. This week letter was received saying the trip had been made. Said the advice from this column helped so much in seeing and doing the most interesting things. Without it we could not have possibly had such a successful trip.

All of which chalks up one more credit mark for good deeds done in a naughty world.

Thanks is hereby relayed, again, to Madison.

Weddings Are Prettier.
Attended a church wedding the other evening. Was impressed with the vastly more picturesque setting provided for the hymeneal vows since men began wearing white evening clothes, instead of the stodgy, old black.

Fair Enough

Burdens of WASHINGTON
June 17.—You Citizens cannot appreciate the nature of those congressmen who voted against the local Washington income tax on their own salaries until you realize how small was the price for which they waived their precious right to share the burdens of citizenship.

Mr. Dirksen, the statesman from Pekin, Ill., who fought for the adoption of the tax, estimates on the basis of considerable study, that the average burden on himself and his colleagues would be no more than $25 or $30 a year. Nevertheless, the boys refused even to consider the tax bill, although all of them are exempt from the federal income tax, if any, in their home districts.

Mr. Dies, of Texas, who voted against consideration, is entitled to rather special advantages, even for a congressman. Not only is he exempt from the state income tax, of which Texas has none, but he lives in one of the eight states having community property law. This law was the subject of particular complaint in Mr. Roosevelt's recent message on the subject of avoidance and evasion through technicalities having the color of legality.

It is true which holds that man and wife, each receive half of his income for the purposes of tax computation, a peculiarity which enables the citizens of Texas to cut their federal taxes by more than half in certain brackets.

Nevertheless, Mr. Dies said: "I am not willing to submit to it (the proposed district income tax) in addition to the federal and state income taxes, and I see no reason why members of congress should not frankly state their position regardless of any criticism they may receive from the newspapers in the district."

Mr. Dirksen Mr. Dies' willingness to pay a state income tax deal with a purely hypothetical tax, of course, but he said it was not right and just to impose an income tax on congressmen for the support of the city in which they live much of the time, enjoying special privileges.

Mr. Dirksen caused severe pain among some of his colleagues with his anti-social remarks.

"I do not see," he said, "how you can have an income tax in the District of Columbia that is worthy of the name, unless you include the members of congress and the members of the cabinet as well as the federal employees. There are 127,000 federal employees in the district."

"You know and I know that many of them have lived here 20 years and more. They use all of the services that are supplied by the municipality. When we suggest that they ought to pay some thing like a fair share of the cost of operating this municipality they throw up their hands in horror as if we were proposing to confiscate their property and their earnings."

He talks about tax evasion and avoidance. This very day we have appointed a joint committee to investigate. We might stop right here on this matter of tax avoidance in order to bring these people (the 3,500,000 public employees in the entire country) within the purview of the federal and state income tax."

Ambiguity I regret to say that that owing to the Of Remarks ambiguity of certain remarks of Congressman O'Connor, of New York, these dispatches yesterday placed him on the side of those who opposed the tax. Mr. O'Connor voted with the minority for consideration of the bill, but on closer inspection of his subsequent remarks I cannot make out whether he favored or opposed the tax on the salaries of congressmen.

He was very angry at the wealthy tax-dodgers who come to Washington to avoid income taxes in their home states, and enjoy the low local tax rates, but I am unable to find in his remarks, other than his vote, an indication of his stand on the taxation of congressmen. To give him the benefit of a doubt, it may be assumed that he is not unwilling to pay $25 or $30 a year, as estimated by Mr. Dirksen, for the enjoyment of the municipal services of Washington and the special privileges which are accorded congressmen.

This explanation, however, does not alter the fact that by a law which he is not unwilling to support the New York legislature without ostentation a few years ago, Mr. O'Connor is entitled to a state pension for his federal services as a congressman, although he is exempt from the state income tax on his salary.

This little political gem of a law is said to be a rarity and the envy of statesmen from all the other states of the union. Perhaps I shouldn't have mentioned it. It might give other legislatures the same idea.

Honest Men of China, England And Africa Have the Same Opinion of a Thief

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

A Jamaica negro, revealing the faults of his race in a book, provides new evidence that vanity is stronger than racial loyalty. The humble workers of Harlem live in loyal brotherhood, until they are their misfortune; but let one of them get money and he soon climbs into the company of the haughty and tries to forget that he is related to common workers.

Races are divided into classes, and these into subdivisions, and the motives that bind the members of a group under ordinary circumstances are seldom noble.

But in time of turmoil and disaster, when men are stripped down to their naked souls, there is a new alignment that gives no thought to race or social class or occupation or national loyalty.

In their years of looting the Orient, white men have competed with one another, with no holds barred, yet supported one another in a crisis against the yellow hordes.

The anxious neutral, watching affairs in Europe, sees no trace of that color loyalty now. Those citizens of Europe who have knowledge and understanding must realize that another suicidal European war will end the white man's dominance and deliver his properties in the east to Japan.

But that thought has no effect on plans for war. One white race envies, fears and hates another, and classes within races hate as bitterly, and each will fight with greater fury in the belief that the other is responsible for a situation that dooms their common civilization.

If war comes, Germany and Italy, having destroyed all liberty and civil rights, may fight as a unit for a time; and England, France and Russia will at first present solid fronts to the enemy; but soon or late each nation will almost certainly face rebellions at home, and class will fight class and group fight group till at last the survivors are aligned in natural classes that have nothing in common except character and conviction.

Decent men were horrified by Germany's bombardment of a helpless city, but that doesn't mean that Germans alone are brutal. There are men in all races capable of such beastliness—and Germans who were sickened by it.

There are gentlemen in all races, and of every color—men who hate all baseness and scorn all dishonor. They recognize one another despite racial differences, and they despise racial class. When the worst comes they will stand together, as they do in time of shipwreck or siege.

Bilbao Lost.
NEW YORK.—The Basques defended themselves valiantly but they were no match for the immensely superior German and Italian mechanical equipment which poured in for weeks through Saint Sebastian in spite of the non-intervention agreement. With the fall of the ancient city, the so-called civil war entered a new phase. The supreme battle for Madrid is now not far distant. The insurgency seems to have regained the supremacy in the air. But the new Loyalist army, which is not a militia, is also about ready to take the field. That army, which has been drilling since January, is half a million strong.

Belgian War Veto Protest.
Hundreds of Belgian war veterans threw their medals on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Brussels in protest against the parliament's action in voting amnesty to the Flemish Nationalists, who proclaimed an independent Flanders in 1917, during the German occupation. Most of those Nationalists live still in exile, for they left for abroad, or were incarcerated, when King Albert returned in 1918. To call these men traitors is an outrage. They worked for the freedom of the Flemish people, a freedom which had been denied for one hundred years by the Belgian state.

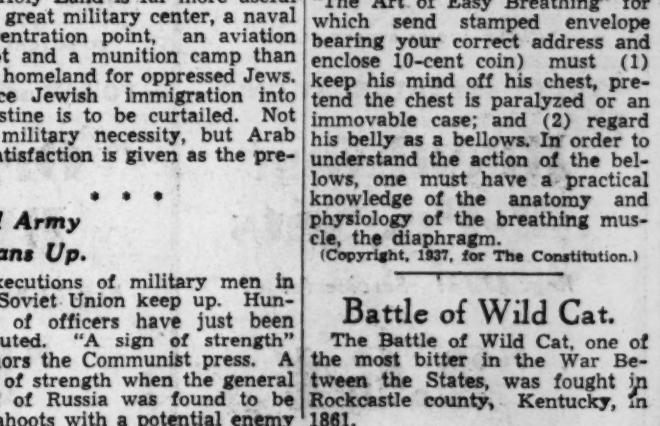

Mr. Smith Finds Duce "Regular."
"Al" Smith, former governor of New York state, was charmed with the Duce's ways in the course of an interview that he goes into rhapsodies about it. At the same time the editors of Giustizia e Libertà, the Rosselli brothers, are assailed in March by Italian secret agents. This happened on the anniversary of the murder of Giacomo Matteotti, for whose death Mussolini assumed personal responsibility. As times go, the Duce is indeed a "regular fellow."

Palestine To Be Curtained.
One word from London and the Arab outrages in Palestine would stop. That one word is not forthcoming. It is now realized in British governmental circles that the Holy Land is more useful as a great military center, a naval concentration point, an aviation depot and a munition camp than as a homeland for oppressed Jews. Hence Jewish immigration into Palestine is to be curtailed. Not the military necessity, but Arab dissatisfaction is given as the pretext.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Too many cooks spoil the pie . . ."

Who is going to cook the industrial wage and hour pie for this country—the government or the collective bargain? The idea just now seems to be to have both, but the axiom seems to be word for the danger. Too many cooks can spoil an industrial pie as easily as they can a cherry pie. The American way, and the only way that really can be trusted in so intricate a matter with such delicate balances involved, would seem to be the bargaining way, the unimpeded play of opposing forces, with the law of supply and demand presiding. The other way, and the government attempting to fix arbitrarily a wage and an hour which it is not within mortal wisdom or harmony ever to fix satisfactorily, is discredited already in recent experience.

In this as in many other instances the New Deal has gone in for a mixture of unimpeded competition and planned economy. The mixture was necessary and possible in the beginning, this column believes, but the time has come when it is no longer necessary and when it can't be continued without an explosion.

At Sewanee the other day when word went out that Ben Finney was to stay on as vice chancellor after all, the students staged a demonstration which included riding him on their shoulders and bringing down tears from that generally imperishable philosopher. The demonstration, in our opinion, was as significant as it was deserved. Dr. Finney represents without trying the ideal which has made the University of the South. He is a scholar, a gentleman, a philosopher, and a man with a sense of humor. His students know this, and their knowledge ought to become contagious.

Man and Woman Both Draw Suspended Sentences in Fulton Court.

Liquor dealers yesterday felt the hand of the law reach in their pockets and relieve them of money. L. L. Boyd, of Dawson county, was fined $200 and given 12 months suspended sentence in criminal court of Fulton county for possession of 66 gallons of whisky which he illegally was transporting to Atlanta from his home county.

Asked if he voted wet June 8, he replied: "I did. You see I'm a good sport."

Geneva Brooks pleaded guilty to possessing six gallons of whisky and was fined $125 and given a six-month suspended sentence. When arrested police said she claimed the whisky belonged to J. L. Smith. In court yesterday, she said it was hers.

"Well, I'm going to fine you heavily and see how good a friend of yours he is," the judge said. Willie Jones was fined $75 and given a six-month suspended sentence and Albert Lee Briney was fined $50 and given a six-month suspended sentence.

Is the sin of saying "inn-surance" and "ceigs-aret" a southern one alone? W. W. Coile, of Nashville, thinks so. "Only southerners do this," he writes. Dr. Charles Burke, English professor at the University of Tennessee, called this to the attention of a freshman class in 1911 that I was a member of, and I have never forgotten it. Inez Stone, of Sparta, Ga., writes interestingly of a "romantic scrapbook" which she prepared and sent to the Duchess of Windsor a few weeks before the wedding. Acknowledgment and thanks from the Duchess' secretary arrived on Wallis blue paper the day of the wedding. The scrapbook consisted of clippings about the great romance between selections of classic verse Miss Stone considered appropriate.

Another champion of honeysuckle is famed Mrs. Tennie S. deJarnette, of the United States Forest Service at Atlanta. "Reading your column," she writes, "my mind slipped along the years to the campus of old Bowdon College with its overgrown tangles of honeysuckle. It engulfed me in a wave of nostalgia for the serenity of those May afternoons when I walked in the cool dusk after a sudden shower had washed the air clean and filled it with the heavenly odor of honeysuckle. Weed, my eye! Here's to the perfume of honeysuckle—long may it wait."

REV. J. M. LONG, 68, DIES AT RESIDENCE

Leading Figure in Baptist Ministry Succumbs After Long Illness.

The Rev. J. M. Long, pastor of the Virginia Avenue Baptist church for the past 10 years and a leading figure in Baptist circles, died yesterday morning at the residence, 654 Park drive, N. E.

The Rev. Mr. Long had been in ill health for several months. He was in his 68th year.

Becoming interested in the Baptist church in 1886 when he attended a revival meeting, the Rev. Mr. Long was baptized shortly after in Chattanooga. He was ordained in 1894, following two years' study at Mercer University and four years of preaching.

His first pastorate was the Second Baptist church, now the Tabernacle, in Chattanooga. He remained there three years and then held a pastorate at Senoia, Ga., until 1903, when he removed to Dawson.

Following four years in Dawson, he went to Fort Valley for five years. Later, he went to Cartersville, holding the pastorate of the First Baptist church in 1912 and 1913. He then came to Atlanta as superintendent of the Georgia Baptist hospital.

The Rev. Mr. Long remained at the hospital post until 1921, when he became superintendent of the Birmingham (Ala.) Baptist hospital. Under his guidance, the Georgia Baptist hospital increased financially, new equipment was installed and the number of patients treated increased.

Retiring from active life in 1923, the Rev. Mr. Long returned to the ministry in 1927, assuming the pulpit of the Virginia Avenue Baptist church.

Negro Driver Convicted on Evidence Presented by New Group.

Atlanta's newly organized traffic safety patrol yesterday obtained its first superior court conviction growing out of an accident. Easter morning in which a woman was killed and her husband severely injured.

Charles Curtis, negro driver of the car which is alleged to have run into the vehicle in which Mrs. Leola Reeves, of 688 English avenue, was riding March 28, was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter and sentenced to serve three years on the chain gang.

Patrolman Marion R. Dodd gathered evidence and turned it over to the solicitor general for prosecution of the negro. Following the trial, several of the jurors expressed "delight at the thoroughness with which the evidence was prepared."

Testimony presented by Assistant Solicitor Quincy Arnold showed the negro was traveling on Payne street at 50 miles per hour when he struck the Reeves car at North avenue; that he was drunk at the time, and that a crowd held him until police arrived.

EXECUTIVE IS FREED IN EXTRA'S CHARGE OF ATTACK AT PARTY

Official Tells Grand Jury Girl Was in Company of Roland Young.

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—(AP)—The county grand jury declined today to indict David Ross, Chicago film salesman, accused by Patricia Douglas, 20, film extra, of beating and attacking her at a screen salesman's party the night of May 5th.

Ross told the grand jury he went to the "Forty-Niners" party, held in a barn on a ranch near Hollywood, with John Quinn, another visiting salesman, and there met and danced with Miss Douglas, Grace Downs and other film extras.

"After a while, Quinn and I got a little bored and wandered outside and then walked to a little bar, where Patricia was standing with a man," Ross said.

"I asked if her companion was Roland Young, the actor. She replied that he was. She introduced us. After chatting a few minutes Quinn and I returned to the main tent."

Question of Time.

"About midnight Quinn and I left, arriving at the hotel near 12:30 a. m."

Miss Douglas said she was attacked at about 12:30 a. m.

Vincent Conitt, casting director for the Hal Roach studios, testified the 120 extra girls were informed they were not to take part in a picture but were to serve as "atmosphere" and hostesses.

Contradictory versions of the party were given by witnesses.

Miss Douglas claimed the extras went to the party in the belief they were going on location for a picture, being given corgi and Spanish costumes.

Party No Secret.

Mrs. Mildred Geise, mother of another of the extra girls, Sugar Geise, told the grand jury she received a call from the casting office asking if Sugar would act as hostess at a ranch party.

"I told them Sugar would be tickled to death," Mrs. Geise said. "And when my daughter returned home I gave her the message and she went. We both knew it was to be a party."

Two waiters at the party, Oscar Buddin and Henry Choute, testified that countless cases of champagne and other liquor was consumed, and the gathering developed into a "wild one."

Ginger Wyatt, another extra, told the jury she had not seen Miss Douglas at the party all evening, but danced once with Ross.

Before entering the jury room, Miss Wyatt remarked:

"It was the wildest and worst party I've ever been on."

REBELS LAUNCH FINAL ASSAULT ON BILBAO

WITH THE NATIONALISTS OUTSIDE BILBAO, June 17.—(UP)—The Nationalist armies of Generalissimo Francisco Franco tonight launched a final assault upon Bilbao from all sides amidst terrific shelling from hills and skies that blasted the last strongholds of the Basque defenders.

Rebel bombers and batteries of field guns ripped a wide swath of destruction along Loyalist positions on the west bank of the Nervion river.

Thousands of troops swarmed upon the city in what may be the crushing blow of this 11-week-old assault.

To the southeast of Bilbao, the Nationalist divisions drove from the Dos Caminos railroad station toward one of the city's largest water reservoirs.

If the reservoir is taken thirst may be added to starvation among the terrorized people remaining in the city.

A native of Russellville, Ky., she was a member of an old and distinguished southern family, the daughter of Finis Ewing and Mary L. Harris.

Among her many noteworthy achievements and public spirited services was the interest and help she gave in raising the $1,000,000 endowment fund for Agnes Scott College several years ago. She organized the College Park Women's Club and served as its first president. Later she was president of the Atlanta Women's Club and the City Federation of Women's Clubs. She was a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

TAX 'DODGING' QUIZ OPENS IN CONGRESS to anyone in particular for this situation," he said. "I am only pointing out that it exists and that it is one of the reasons requiring continual revision of the tax laws."

The same persons who hire "ingenious" attorneys to provide you with frequent changes in the law, would scorn to use the same subtle devices in avoiding payments to their creditors. The problem of closing revenue add loopholes, the secretary added, is "continuing and ever present." He joined with Magill in hoping that the current inquiry will create an atmosphere "in which men will hesitate to use ingenious devices to avoid the payment of taxes."

Tax Revenues Fall.

President Roosevelt proposed the inquiry in a special message to congress on June 1, after income tax revenues fell far below administration expectations. His message was accompanied by a letter from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings citing alleged ways in which certain rich persons assertedly avoided income taxes.

As the probe got under way the Treasury revealed that the national debt rose to $36,583,807,802 on June 15, representing an overnight jump of $1,352,038,000 resulting from June financing and the setting up of special government obligations.

The variety of devices used to avoid taxes today, Morgenthau said, calls for remedial legislation. The immediate objective in the "present emergency is practical tax legislation," he said. The great body of citizens display the same attitude toward their obligations to the government that they display toward private obligations, he added.

Important Only to Rich.

"Practically all of the devices used would look absurd if applied to persons of small incomes," he said. "They are important as tax-dodging devices only for the very rich."

Morgenthau then listed what he described as the three principal "schemes" which are being "designed, copied and imitated" today to avoid payment of federal levies:

1. Creation of a multiple personality by the taxpayer. By this device he ceases to be a single individual and becomes a whole group of people, some of whom are earning money while others are losing it. The result is a series of losses which would not have been deductible for tax purposes had the taxpayer remained a single personality.

2. A variation of the multiple personality device by which the taxpayer deals with his family at "arms length" and creates taxable losses out of the performance of personal obligations which he owes to them. For example, he takes his wife into partnership with him and splits his income between himself and his children instead of maintaining them.

3. A device through which an individual doing business in this country makes it appear by a series of corporate personalities, which he controls, that he actually is doing business abroad in some foreign country.

Treasury figures show that within the last two years, 585 foreign corporations have been formed which "probably represent business interests in this country."

The effect these tax avoidance devices, Morgenthau said, has been:

1. To create the belief that rich men with expensive attorneys do not have to pay taxes. There is just enough truth in this, Morgenthau said, to have "far-reaching consequences on the morale of hundreds of thousands of taxpayers."

2. To make it impossible to estimate Treasury revenues for budget purposes.

3. To make it difficult to eliminate the devices after they have received a "semi-respectable" standing.

Attack on Wealth Denied.

Morgenthau denied that the President's request for the investigation and the current drive by Treasury against alleged tax avoiders was an "attack on wealth." This charge was made yesterday by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the house ways and means committee, who assailed the inquiry as a "circus."

"Anyone who gives the matter unbiased consideration will realize that it is for the benefit of the rich to plug loopholes in tax laws, since this raises more revenues without raising rates," he said.

Morgenthau closed his testimony with the statement that utilization of the tax devices has cost the government "huge" sums. Neither he nor Magill, who followed him, could estimate these losses. Magill listed these popular methods of tax avoidance which he said had been checked by the Treasury:

1. Foreign personal holding companies.

2. Foreign insurance companies.

3. Domestic personal holding companies to create surpluses and artificial deductions.

4. Incorporation of yachts and country estates.

5. Creation of multiple trusts for relatives and dependents.

6. Family partnerships.

7. Pension trusts.

SUMMER SUIT OF COTTON

With this smart-looking double-breasted cotton suit is worn a Panama hat with narrow band, tartan tie of seersucker cloth, light-weight shirt of solid color.

These and Other Cotton Suits Have a Specific Place in Hot-Weather Line-Up—No Suit Will Cool You, But Many Will Be Cool.

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD,
Editor Men's Fashions.

There isn't a suit that's made that can be called "cooling," but there are many varieties of summer suits that can legitimately be termed "cool." The point of saying this is that if it's hot, it's hot, and only climbing into a swimming pool or an ice box is going to make you any cooler.

The point of your light weight, cool summer suit is that it will help keep your heat at a minimum, instead of adding to it. And the further point is that it will help you to look cooler, besides to be cooler—and that, it needs no profound psychological research to establish, is half the battle.

There is also the extra point of smartness and style. Of course, the current consensus has it that style and comfort in summer should coincide. You can't be fashionable and hot—the two won't mix.

Three Reasons for The Summer Wardrobe

An extra step along this path to smart summer comfort is to have several suits in your summer wardrobe for at least two good reasons:

The first, so as to have the proper suit for the varying degrees of temperature the summer brings; second, to have a suit for the various occasions of life, whether business, sport or evening.

Third, to provide you with frequent changes, since a fresh-looking and fresh-feeling suit in hot weather is a great asset.

Washable summer suits are a distinct boon to the suffering male in this respect. Modern Sanforizing processes and similar treatments, if correctly applied, permit

He recommended:

1. A revision of the law which permits a certain amount of tax exemption to owners of a modern summer suit to be washed or dry cleaned over and over again and come up each time in good shape, as clean and ready for wear as ever.

Cotton suits constitute an important category in the wardrobe for summer. First of all there are the gabardines and tricotines, which are much alike except that the latter has somewhat wider wailes. Solid colors are most acceptable in these fabrics—plain white is the leader, with tan, gray, and blue following in that order. Another all-cotton type is the cotton corded suit, in which raised ribs form a sort of self pattern.

Seersucker Is The Lightest Weight

In the division of all-cotton suits comes also one of the most important of summer suiting fabrics—important, for one thing, because, it represents just about the lightest-weight suiting that is available. The reference is, of course, to seersucker. For the dog days, the very, very hot days when heat sweats out of the walls, the pavement, and your very flesh, the seersucker will be the best bet, for its thin and featherweight texture will provide a minimum of added weight. Besides that, its crinkly surface is cooler because it touches the flesh only at intervals. It is smart-looking in its quality grades, appearing in stripes, checks, plaids.

A new summer suiting on the market this year is a blend of rayon, cotton, and wool. In the right proportion, the mixture is as much possible of the unique virtues of each of these yarns—luster, tailorability, washability, coolness and light weight.

2. Elimination of a provision in the law which grants preferential treatment to women in eight community property states as much as possible of the unique virtues of each of these yarns—luster, tailorability, washability, coolness and light weight.

3. Imposition of higher taxes on nonresident aliens.

No Truce to Evaders.

Magill used such words as "ridiculous," "amusing" and "artificial" in presenting his arguments against the alleged tax avoiders. He said "quite a lot" of instances of evasion had been uncovered by Treasury agents, and that criminal action would be taken by the government. In at least one instance, Magill disclosed, the government is offering no truce to the known evaders.

He said "five or six" New York insurance men who formed an insurance company in the Bahamas to allegedly thwart tax payments have offered to pay the amount of taxes they avoided by the maneuver but the government is insisting that they also pay a fine.

Bahamas Benefit.

Magill said he did not know the extent to which the Bahamas have been used for the development of corporate enterprises. He pointed out that the inhabitants are poverty-stricken; that there is a small trade in liquor; that there are few hotels for winter tourists but that "long lists of impressive sounding corporations, financed by American capital, appear in the directories of office buildings."

Questioned by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, about the co-operation foreign governments are giving the Treasury in the search for alleged tax avoiders, Magill said:

"Some are co-operating and some are not. Even those who do help us are throwing obstacles in our path."

make a total of new revenue of $129,902.

City Comptroller B. Graham West said the $60,000 transferred by the finance committee from the Grady pay roll account had been put in the sheet to cover the amount the county usually contributes. Since the county has donated its part, the committee took the money for other purposes.

Important Refunding.

Refunding of the bonds was one of the most important phases of Mayor Hartsfield's financial program and was authorized by the constitutional amendment which allows the city to refund existing bonds up to $2,000,000. Only $1,800,000 of bonds are due or past due.

A total of $1,179,000 in bonds which were funded during the depression by the Key administration to provide for public relief are among the bonds to be refunded. The relief certificates are for 10 years while the new bonds will be over a 30-year period at a lower interest rate, thus effecting a considerable annual saving.

The bond ordinance approved by the committee authorizes issuance of 2,000 bonds of $1,000 each, to retire the due and past due bonds. West said bonds to be retired include the $1,179,000 relief certificates, now past due, and $350,000 worth of water works bonds and $277,000 worth of serial bonds which fall due July 1. Not until January 1, 1938, can other bonds be retired.

Nine Would Take Issue.

Nine bond brokers and banks joined in offering to take the entire issue at par value at 2 3/4 per cent interest. They were the Trust Company of Georgia, the Chase National Bank, Robinson-Humphrey Company, Brooke, Tindall & Company, J. H. Hillman & Company, Johnson, Lane, Space & Company, A. Evans & Company, Courts & Company and the Wayne Martin Company. The bonds must be validated in Fulton superior court and accompanied by a favorable opinion of a referee, Thorneycroft, Palmer & Dodge, Boston bond experts. They must be delivered before August 14.

Finance committee members argued but little over the expenditure of the new revenue and located to restore the basic pay of employees drawing more than $100 a month. Council recently voted to restore workers making under $100 a month to basic as of June 1 and gave a 5 per cent restoration to employees in the upper bracket as of July, leaving them under a 5 per cent cut from basic. If council Monday acts favorably on the finance committee report, all city employees will be drawing full basic pay in July.

Following is a brief resume of the new finance sheet to be considered by council:

$8,000 for retirement of the cash deficit, representing earmarked taxes; $15,000 for Grady hospital supplies; $11,000 for fire department equipment; $20,000 for three pension funds; $4,500 for street assessments paid by the city through the municipal revenue collector; $4,200 for street improvements; $3,600 for the contingent fund; $6,300 for the facial survey of local government; $800 for survey of Oakland cemetery records in co-operation with WPA, which is spending $12,000 on the project; $67,174 for the 5 per cent salary restoration; $38,000 for the schools; $1,000 for city hall supplies and roofing; $332 for coin change machines for tax receiver; $4,500 for traffic lights; $3,500 for reconditioning two street sweepers in the sanitary department; $3,200 for vacations for sanitary workers; $1,200 for transfer of records in the water department and $1,311 to provide vacations for workers in this department; and $500 for office supplies at relief headquarters.

A request from Police Chief

M. A. Hornsby for 14 additional policemen was brought before the committee by Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen and Mayor Hartsfield, but there were no funds for this purpose available, committee men said. They intimated they would attempt to provide more police later in the year. Fourteen men were cut from the force at the beginning of the year when the drastic budget was adopted soon after Hartsfield took office. Hornsby said he could get along without additional clerical aid but needed more patrolmen.

Numerous requests for money were turned down or postponed by the committee. George W. Powell, bond commission member, asked for funds to provide an audit of bond commission expenditures, and John M. Cooper, of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, requested help from the city in the bureau's battle for parity rates for southern shippers. Dozens of requests for raises for city employees were postponed or tabled.

Urges Sewer Plan Rejection.

Alderman Frank Reynolds, chairman of the sewer committee, asked the finance committee to advise the proposal of Fulton county to take over north side sewers and the Clayton disposal plant as its share of the upkeep of the metropolitan sewer system. He had favored it but said further study is advisable and asked the county to contribute a set sum each year as its part.

Councilman J. Allen Couch moved to request $50,000 from Fulton county for sewers but the committee did not vote on it. Reynolds, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, City Attorney Jack Savage and W. A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction, are working out plans with county officials.

Insuring the cyclorama, world famous painting of the Battle of Atlanta, for $100,000 was approved by the committee. Though valued at $100,000 by George L. Simmons, parks manager, the painting was insured against fire, tornadoes, earthquakes and vandalism for one-tenth that amount. It is in a concrete, fireproof building.

Resolutions referred to the finance committee to give 20-day vacations to firemen and policemen and to give all city employees time off for days declared holidays by the mayor were adversely affected by considerable argument. The mayor said it would cost too much.

LAND LOANS RATE CRITICIZED BY F. D. R.

President Warns Congress
U. S. Unable to Subsidize Farm Borrowers.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt served notice on congress today that the government could not "permanently subsidize" farm borrowers and at the same time reach a balanced budget.

In a letter to Chairman Jones, Democrat, Texas, of the house agriculture committee, the President criticized a proposal to continue the 3 1/2 per cent interest rate on Land bank loans.

The letter was read at senate banking committee hearings on the proposal. The bill, introduced by Representative Jones, passed the house June 7.

Mr. Roosevelt said the measure would cost the treasury more than $40,000,000 a year. New taxes, he warned the legislators, would be necessary to meet added burdens on the treasury.

The bill would extend for one year the 3 1/2 per cent interest rate, due to expire June 30 on loans totalling more than $2,000,000,000. At the end of the year a 4 per cent rate would become effective.

BALANCED BUDGET PLEDGED BY FULTON BY SEPTEMBER 1

Promise Made by Commissioners to Atlanta Clearing House Banks.

Fulton's anticipated, as well as cash, budget for the 1937 fiscal year will be balanced by September 1, county commissioners assured Atlanta Clearing House banks at a special meeting yesterday.

The promise came in a motion by Commissioner George S. Strickland after Robert S. Strickland, president of the Trust Company of Georgia and representative of the clearing house banks, unofficially had told the commissioners the banks might not accept the county's warrants if the $75,000 anticipated deficit was not eliminated at once.

Under the financial setup of the county, approximately $2,000,000 is borrowed from clearing house banks each spring with which to operate the county during the first six months of the year and on July 1 warrants are issued to pay debts until the tax receipts come in. These warrants, in a sense loans, are cashed by the banks with the understanding the county's expenditures shall be kept within the budget.

Now Under Cash Budget.
At present the county is operating $9,000 under the cash budget. Commissioners explained to Strickland that the increased expenditures at the present time are due to paying some large bills during this spring which in former years were not paid until December. They said this will eliminate some expenditures this fall.

Strickland agreed with a statement by Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson in which Fulton county was described as operating on the soundest financial basis of any civic body in their knowledge. "We merely want to keep it so," Strickland said in explaining his visit.

Meet at Banker's Request.

The special meeting was called at the request of the banker to warn the commissioners that if the budget was not adhered to there might be embarrassment when times came to cash warrants.

Auditor's figures showed that for the first six months of 1937 expenditures of the county were $1,795,050.90 as compared to $1,581,267.19 during the same period last year. This is a net increase of $213,783.71. During the same period the receipts of the county have increased only $13,018.56, or from $873,298.11 to $886,316.67.

Longino said that if the final budget report of the auditor on September 1—in which all tax returns and receipts will be included and estimated—shows the year will be ended in the "red," a special meeting will be called and expenditures "whacked into line."

Three Get Pay Increases.
Following the promise to stay in the budget, the commissioners voted three salary increases. Miss

Ten-Cent Countess Saves in Tax Deal

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(UP)—Countess Barbara Haugwitz-Reventlow, the Barbara Hutton of dime store millions, won a $10,608 concession from the federal government on her tax deficiencies for the years 1932-33, it was disclosed tonight.

The government asked for $23,541. The countess offered $42,933. The government accepted.

Catherine Buchanan, clerk in the fingerprint bureau of the county police, was increased from $105 per month to $125; J. H. Bush, court cost collector, was transferred to the superior court clerk's office as deputy clerk, succeeding John Burdine, at $200 per month; the chairman of the board was authorized to appoint a successor to Bush as cost collector at $150 per month; A. P. McDonald, highway engineer, was increased from $150 per month to $200.

A contract with the state highway board under which the county will pave .39 mile of road on the Roswell-Marietta highway and the state will pay for labor and material was signed by the commission. This is from the square to the city limits.

Contract for asphalt needed for roadwork of the county was awarded Sam E. Finley, low bidder.

The commissioners also authorized the employment of two road boys by the highway division of public works at a salary of $75 per month. The jobs are to last 90 days.

U. S. SEEKS ACCORD TO LIMIT GUN SIZE

F. D. R. Sends Notes to Britain, Japan, France and Italy on Navy Arms.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—The United States undertook today to forestall any international race to increase the size of naval guns.

State Department officials disclosed notes have been dispatched to Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, asking if each would consent to limit their sea weapons to 14-inch caliber.

President Roosevelt was understood to have ordered this move in an effort to persuade Japan to reconsider its previous refusal to participate in such an international agreement. The other three nations have expressed willingness to abide by a 14-inch limit.

The United States navy must decide soon whether it will mount 14 or 16-inch guns on two new battleships to be laid down this year.

Officers acknowledged unless Japan reverses its position, the navy will adopt the larger weapon.

A Tokyo dispatch, quoting an authoritative person, said Japan had decided to reject Roosevelt's proposal.

Private bids were opened at the Navy Department today for the construction of one of the two new American dreadnaughts. The proposals from three companies ranged from a qualified bid of $46,215,500 to a fixed price of $59,900,000 for hull and machinery alone. To this must be added approximately $20,000,000 for guns and armor, to be supplied by the government.

WAY CLEARED IN HOUSE FOR FARM TENANCY BILL

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—Congressional leaders cleared the way today for house consideration next week of long-pending, controversial farm tenancy legislation recommended by President Roosevelt.

To comply with the administration's policy of holding down new expenditures, the house agriculture committee revised a bill it approved two months ago. It slashed the appropriations which the measure would authorize from $470,000,000 for a five-year period to $135,000,000 for three years.

KIDNAPERS SOUGHT IN ISOLATED AREAS

'Dragnet' Search of 9-Mile Territory Fails to Reveal Any New Clues.

STONY BROOK, N. Y., June 17.—(AP)—Federal agents announced tonight they had completed a "dragnet" search of a nine-mile area around the home of Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons—a search apparently unproductive of clues to the strange disappearance of the society matron.

As the case of the gentleman poultryman's missing wife entered its ninth day, Inspector Earl Connelley, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said in a press conference that attention now would be turned to "likely spots" in "isolated areas."

"No Comment."
About reports that J. Edgar Hoover, FBI head, and Major John A. Warner, head of the state police, were converging on Stony Brook, indicative of a "break" in the case, Connelley said "No comment."

State police said that Warner was on his way to Long Island, but that the visit was routine. In connection with a report that a contact with the supposed kidnappers of Mrs. Parsons had been attempted on a boat, Connelley was asked if he had been in a rowboat off Port Jefferson last night. He replied "No comment."

"Rare Spots" Probed.
Connelley denied knowledge of several "persons" column advertisements in New York newspapers, possible messages to the kidnappers which the papers said had been inserted by a man who said he was a federal agent.

Completion of the "dragnet" search included investigation of a Brookhaven policeman's assertion that he detected odor from a body buried near the Parsons home. Digging, halted last night by darkness, failed to disclose anything to substantiate his belief.

County authorities said more than a dozen "rare spots" were investigated before the search for a possible hidden grave was abandoned.

County authorities said more than a dozen "rare spots" were investigated before the search for a possible hidden grave was abandoned.

Nuptials of Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond Hit All-Time Hollywood Records Both in Spectators and Expense.

HOLLYWOOD, June 17.—(UP)—Red-haired Jeanette MacDonald and her new husband, Gene Raymond, hid out in a honeymoon retreat tonight while a dazed film colony, hardened to the super-colossal, slowly got its breath back after witnessing the greatest mob scene since "The Birth of a Nation."

More than 1,000 persons, including every "name" star now in Hollywood, who peered Wilshire Methodist Episcopal church, and the 10,000 who weren't invited—but who came anyway and clogged the streets for a dozen blocks outside—agreed it was an all-time record, even for the film colony. NEGRO BEATS GIRL, STUFFS HER IN DUCT

Youngster Charges She Was Lured With Promise of Photos.

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—A negro porter was accused by District Attorney Samuel J. Foley today of luring a 10-year-old girl to the basement of a Bronx theater yesterday and beating her unconscious when she resisted his advances.

The girl was found stuffed in a ventilating duct under the theater stage this morning, nearly 20 hours after the asserted attack.

She was taken, semi-conscious, to Lincoln hospital, where physicians said she was suffering from a skull fracture and multiple contusions. She was expected to recover.

Police took William Ray, 28, and another porter employed at the theater, to the hospital. Foley said the girl identified Ray as her assailant and Detective Martin Fitzpatrick then quoted him as admitting that he beat her with a brick when she repelled him.

The girl, motherless daughter of a railroad flagman, "skipped" school yesterday morning and went to the theater. She said Ray enticed her into the basement with promises of autographed pictures of movie stars.

Failure To Read Policy Is Costly to Insured
Insurance policyholders yesterday were warned by the state court of appeals to "read your policy."

The warning came in a decision reversing the judgment of the city court of Oglethorpe in the case of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States vs. Adams.

Adams' sued to collect disability benefits and the lower court dismissed the insurance company's demurrer. The court of appeals reversed this action and held the suit for collection should have been dismissed.

The insured took out the policy in 1922, was totally disabled in 1930, but did not file claim to recover under the policy until he discovered a disability clause in 1935. The policy contained a clause in which the holder waived claim to disability benefit unless such claim was made within a specified number of days.

WELFARE AIDES WILL BE NAMED

Murdaugh Says List Was Released Prematurely.

Declaring that lists of county welfare board appointees have been "published prematurely," Lamar Murdaugh, director of the state welfare department, said last night he will release the list of appointees at 10 o'clock this morning at his office in the capitol.

Murdaugh's announcement of release of the list followed the action of the Bibb county commissioners, who met yesterday in special session at Macon and ordered an investigation into the five-man county welfare board approved Wednesday by the state welfare department, and a statement last night by J. H. Griffith, chairman of the Clarke county board of commissioners, in which he said he had received no official notification from the state welfare board why it refused to ratify the Clarke county welfare board appointments.

"No releases of appointees was made by the state, except for Fulton county," said Murdaugh. "Information published was published prematurely, and taken without authority by newspapermen. I will release a complete list of the county board appointments, and a statement concerning the entire matter."

Rialto Has Epic Story With 'Silent Barriers'
"Silent Barriers," which comes to the Rialto theater today for a week's engagement, is one of the most absorbing of that small group of film productions which really deserve the designation "epic." It tells an epochal story of one of the greatest engineering feats in history, the building of the Canadian Pacific railroad and its dramatic power on the screen is really worthy of the majesty of its subject.

Richard Arlen portrays the principal character, that of a swaggering gambler who becomes a national hero in emergency, while Lilli Palmer and Antoinette Collier fill two feminine roles with equal allure those opposite characters. Others in the cast include Harry Mackay, J. Farrell MacDonald, Roy Emerson, etc.

There are few stories in the history of man's conquest of the west more stirring than the story of the building of the C. P. R., the first railroad to link east and west in Canada. The obstacles to be overcome, by rioting men and the forces of terrific nature provide tremendous background for the human story.

Manager W. T. Murray has secured, in "Silent Barriers," one of the greatest of screen productions. He has added a suitable group of entertaining short subjects to complete a program that should make box office history during the next seven days.

'Cappy Ricks' on Screen
In Paramount Feature
That irascible but lovable old seafaring character created by Peter B. Kyne, "Cappy Ricks," comes to life on the screen in the cosmopolitan comedy-drama, "The Go-Getter," which starts today at the Paramount theater.

Charles Winninger, well remembered as the Cap'n Andy of both stage and screen versions of "Show Boat," plays Cappy in this delightful movie.

He isn't the "go-getter." That individual is the tall, handsome Irish star, George Brent, who is in love with Cappy's daughter, portrayed by the lovely blonde, Anita Louise. George and Anita carry the romantic interest of the show. But neither nor both can steal away the audience's affection for old Cappy. It is an exceptionally well-balanced cast that portrays this famous yarn of Mr. Kyne's. Apart from the starring trio, there are such players as Henry O'Neill, John Eldredge, Joseph Crehan, Gordon Oliver, Eddie Acuff, Herbert Rawlinson, Mary Teen, Helen Lowell, Helen Valkis and Minerva Urecal.

Brent is a member of the crew of the famous dirigible Macon, which plunged into the Pacific ocean a few years ago. This plunge is shown on the screen, one of the most astonishing things the movies have ever done. Bill Austin, the character played by Brent, loses a leg in the accident, is mustered out of the navy and must find himself a job in civil life. That's how he meets up with Cappy Ricks and Cappy's daughter.

He is put through all sorts of tests by Cappy and the girl before he wins them both over. But he does win them, and that's the story of "The Go-Getter."

An ocean-going honeymoon from which the bride and groom swim home is one of the best comedy scenes on the screen.

'Good Old Soak' Stars
Wally Beery at Grand
Wallace Beery comes to Loew's Grand theater today in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Good Old Soak," which is said to be his greatest characterization. "Good Old Soak" draws a cross-section of the America that was—the almost United States in the era of prohibition.

Beery portrays the character of a small-town philosopher who retires from active business in order to locate the local speakeasies.

The complications of the plot revolve around a family nestegg that is stolen. Of course the Old Soak is blamed. The manner in which he restores the money and reunites the clan makes a story that will provide many laughs. Beery, in the leading role, utilizes all of his innate knowledge of human nature and virtually lives the character conceived by Marquis during those confusing years of the dry era in America.

In the supporting cast Una Merkel contributes another of her delightfully funny portrayals, with Eric Linden, Ted Healy, Betty Furness, Janet Beecher, George Sidney, Robert McWade and James Bush. Also of interest to sportsmen is the Pete Smith oddity, "Golf Mistakes," with several professional golfers, including Harry Cooper, Horton Smith, Lawson Little and Jimmy Thompson. Old Soak, a Walt Disney silly symphony, "Little Hiawatha," and "News of the Day" complete the program.

Burns and Raye at Fox
In Comedy of Ozarks
Bob Burns, celebrated Arkansas drawler, goes native in "Mountain Music," a comedy of life among the Ozark hillbillies, which opens today at the Fox Theater.

Long acclaimed for his stories of the down home folks on the air, in the newspapers and in films, Burns, with Martha Raye who shares stellar honors with him in the comedy, returns to the land of the squirrel rifle, coon houn dawg, bearded giants and stone jugs for a homespun yarn of feuds and shotgun weddings of the type that have made Burns America's best-loved raconteur.

The cast also includes John Howard and Terry Walker, a new screen beauty in the leading romantic roles and a host of supporting players including George Hayes, Jan Duggan, Fuzzy Knight, Rufe Davis and Spencer Charters. "Mountain Music" is an original story of MacKinlay Kantor, noted author of "The Voice of Bugle Ann," and other well-known stories. It places Burns in the role of a hillbilly who is forced to end a feud which had been going on between their families for a century. This breaks up Howard who is in love with the girl. Burns has a peculiarity. He completely forgets who he is when he is struck on the head. He is struck on the head just before the wedding and leaves town.

'Midnight Taxi' Comes To Capitol on Sunday

Screen murders in public put gray hairs on the head and red figures in the ledger, declare Director Eugene Forde and Associate Producer Milton H. Feld, after six retakes were required to film a thrilling scene in a public park for "Midnight Taxi," which opens a week's engagement at the Capitol theater, starting Sunday featuring Brian Donlevy and Frances Drake. Donlevy, impersonating a federal officer, had hijacked the car of Alvan Dinehart, shot him and was making a getaway when city police arrived with sirens screaming, summoned by an excited passerby. After calming several squads of police, Forde decided that getting away with murder wasn't easy, even in the movies.

"Breezing Along," a fast-paced stage offering, will be presented in conjunction with "Midnight Taxi." Capitol's current screen offering is "That I May Live," starring Robert Kent and Rochelle Hudson, which is offered through Saturday, together with eight acts of vaudeville on the stage.

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—(AP) Oscar Johnson, first vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, said here today he was opposed to any crop insurance bill relating to cotton. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 17.—(AP)—Clayton Key, 21, fought for his life in a hospital here today, the victim of a freak shooting which authorities said they were investigating. Key was working on a truck farm yesterday. Nearly two blocks away some boys were shooting a .22 caliber rifle at a target on the top of a chicken house. CLERGY TO DEMAND DRY ENFORCEMENT

Augustans Move To Arouse Citizenry to a Respect of the Law.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 17.—(AP) The Augusta Ministerial Association, campaigning against sale of liquor here, is seeking 5,000 signatures to a petition urging enforcement of state prohibition laws here. The Rev. J. W. Vestch, pastor of the St. John Methodist church, today predicted he would have the signatures by Sunday and would present the petition to city council.

"What we are hoping to do," he said, "is to arouse the citizenry to a respect of the law."

Rev. Boring To Speak
He said Rev. W. H. Boring, pastor of the Wesley Memorial church of Atlanta, would address a law enforcement mass meeting here next Thursday night.

Eleven Protestant ministers and S. O. Robertson, general secretary of the Augusta Y. M. C. A., attended today's meeting at which the plan for the petition was perfected. The name of Colonel R. L. Chambers, director of police, was not mentioned, Rev. Vestch said, during discussions.

To Continue "Control."
The director of police announced he would continue the licensing of liquor stores here as the best means of controlling sale of whisky. Colonel Chambers, answering a reporter's question, said he would serve any warrants sworn out against liquor stores.

"I am responsible for the respect of all laws," he added. "I don't want people to think I am the type of man who disregards any or all laws." Meanwhile, he has run afoul of the Central Labor Union here. The union last night declared unanimously by resolution that his position as head of the police and fire departments "is a direct and deliberate insult to organized labor and to all law-respecting citizens of Augusta."

SENATOR HARRISON URGES MILITIA ACTION
SYLVANIA, Ga., June 17.—(AP) Walter Harrison, mayor of Millen and a state senator, was lined up today with those who favor using the state militia to stop the sale of liquor in Richmond and Chatham counties.

"As a member of the Georgia senate and a leader of the dries, it is my purpose," he said, "to call on the Governor to use the militia if necessary to put down any insurrection brought about by such wet counties as Chatham and Richmond."

"If they are to remain a part of the state, no compromise should be made in this matter."

Christopher Basso, baker in Rochester, N. Y., vowed a year ago that if his wife, for whom physicians had given up hope, regained her health he would honor St. Joseph. She recovered.

So he entertained more than 800 friends, friends of friends, and even total strangers at dinner in his home. Each diner was asked to carry away food so that nothing was left at the end of the feast.

JACKSON TO LEAD TAX REVISION STUDY

Cochran Senator Is Named Chairman of Joint Legislative Committee.

Senator Guy D. Jackson, of Cochran, was elected yesterday as chairman of a joint legislative committee named to study the possible revision of Georgia's tax laws.

Representative Henderson L. Lanham, of Rome, was chosen vice chairman and Representative James V. Carmichael, of Marietta, secretary. Other members of the committee are Senator Lee S. Purdom, of Blackshear; Alvin A. Fowler, of Douglasville, and Speaker Pro Tem John C. Parker, of Moultrie.

The committee, which took no further action yesterday, expects to study intangibles at its next meeting, the date for which was not set.

Carmichael later told the Marietta Kiwanis club that he favored abolition of the present state ad valorem tax of three mills, elimination of all so-called nuisance and occupation taxes and levy of a "basic" tax with a varying rate of taxation for tangibles and intangibles according to their earning capacity.

"I think that by a revision of our antiquated tax system we can produce the needed revenue and at the same time reduce the burden on the individual by making many persons pay taxes who do not do so now," Carmichael said. He stressed that what he said was "not as a member of the committee."

Mrs. Johnson will head a party of 14 white men, two unnamed actors and some 100 native porters in the African jungles to film a picture depicting the search of Henry M. Stanley for David Livingstone. Only two weeks out of a wheel chair, she expects that traveling through the jungle will strengthen her leg, injured when she and her husband crashed in an airplane, and bring it back to normal. Mrs. Johnson's own account of the expedition will appear in The Constitution.

rivers and mountains which stand out if the visibility is good.

Today, heavy haze curtailed the view after the sand had blown away. Black eagles came flying out of the sky at 5,000 feet. How they managed to miss the plane I don't know. I have never had such an experience, and I only hope the birds along the rest of the route are smarter about avoiding the faster moving machine.

Country Is Whittish.
Allahabad is an ancient city on the river Ganges. The surrounding country is whittish in color and in the haze the trees were black spots.

I felt we might be flying over Nebraska after a December snowfall, even though the temperature was 90 degrees at 5,500 feet. Green mountains piled up beyond Allahabad and severe rain storms over them blocked our way. As I tried going between the two, air currents shot us up a thousand feet while I vainly pushed the plane's nose down, the rain, a tropical deluge, engulfed us. After that I gave the squalls more distance though the air was very rough for miles around.

Visibility Improves.

plains a hundred miles from Calcutta the low clouds disappeared and visibility improved. We could see below many towns and railroads. This section is the center of the coal and iron industry. Calcutta itself is a huge manufacturing center. Gray and green and tan mosaic paddy fields surround the city. The country is much wetter than Karachi, with tropical vegetation. Driving from the airport to the home of our host, I was surprised to see so many rickshaws. The streets are very wide and thronged with every kind of conveyance as well as myriad white buildings. Bulls wander at will on the sidewalks or in the streets.

Tomorrow's weather is not promising, but we will be up early in case it is better than expected. The field was rather wet when we landed and had just escaped a shower. We are taking on little fuel for it rains tonight it will be difficult to lift the load off the sod. So tomorrow we plan to call at Akyab or Rangoon, en route to Bangkok.

ATLANTA EXECUTIVE CRITICALLY INJURED

James McD. Sturton, of 1690 North Emory road, N. E., general sales manager of the International Business Machine Corporation, was critically injured at about noon yesterday when his automobile struck a pole on the highway seven miles north of Lexington, Ky., according to the Associated Press.

He was admitted to a Lexington hospital, suffering a fractured skull, lacerations of the right leg and cuts and bruises of the body. Police said the car suddenly swerved, struck the pole and then landed in a ditch.

J. H. LORD, 63, PASSES AT RESIDENCE HERE

J. H. Lord, retired city employee and fraternal leader, died at his residence on Bolton road yesterday. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Lord was born in Fulton county and was past master and past high priest of the Bolton Masonic Lodge. He also was a member of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

Prior to his retirement he was an engineer at the city's pumping station in Bolton. Funeral plans will be announced by Earl Barrett Funeral Home.

U. S. NAMES BOARD IN STEEL DISPUTE

Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, the administration's ace trouble-shooter, now en route back to this country from Geneva. All accepted appointment.

Miss Perkins moved as the tense labor situation was highlighted by these developments:

1. Murray told the senate post-office committee he had sought unsuccessfully to obtain an agreement whereby the strike dispute would be submitted either to President Roosevelt or the governors of Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

2. The committee, considering proposals by Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, for an investigation of alleged interference with the mails by strikes, and by Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, for an inquiry into the conduct of the Republic and Carnegie-Illinois steel companies, voted to subpoena motion picture films of the recent fatal clash at Chicago which resulted in nine deaths.

3. Lewis, scheduled to address a CIO mass meeting at Chicago, cancelled the speech and announced "circumstances" prevented him from making the trip. He declined to elaborate.

4. New violence was reported along steel picket lines. A picket was shot at Canton, Ohio, and his companions cut loose a freight train engine and sent it driverless down the track. A general strike was threatened at Canton.

5. Murray conferred with Miss Perkins last, accompanied by Lee Pressman, CIO counsel, and A. D. Lewis, brother of John L. Lewis. Murray said he would be glad to cooperate with the mediation board, which he understood would start functioning Monday. He described the strike situation as "excellent" and predicted victory for the steel workers.

Miss Perkins' administrative order stated "an emergency has arisen as a result of the labor dispute in the steel industry" and it was "desirable to provide an additional means of accomplishing a reasonable solution."

Board's Powers.

Naming the three members and appointing Taft chairman she said the board was authorized to:

"Investigate issues, disputes, facts, practices and activities of employers and employees that are burdening or obstructing or threatening to burden or obstruct the free flow of interstate commerce."

"To conduct hearings, take testimony under oath, and to make findings of fact and recommendations for settlement."

"To act as voluntary arbitrator on request of the parties to the dispute and render awards with respect to the subject matter of such disputes as are submitted to it as shall be binding upon the parties to the submission."

She said she expected Taft and

Other Developments In U. S. Labor Scene

By the Associated Press.

Aside from the developments in the seven-state steel dispute, the national strike scene yesterday found:

NEW YORK—Complete shutdown of shipbuilding in the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area in a fight between maritime unions for domination of eastern waterfront. Sporadic strikes on number of ships in Atlantic ports resulted.

CHICAGO—John L. Lewis, CIO chieftain, telegraphed a message to a mass meeting of his followers charging nine victims of Memorial Day steel strike riot "were deliberately murdered in cold blood by the Chicago police department as a friendly favor to the Republic Steel Company."

BUFFALO, N. Y.—A sit-down strike affecting 750 employees of Fisher Body Company's Buffalo plant ended with workers agreeing to return to their jobs pending negotiations to settle their grievance.

NEWTON, Iowa—2,500 employees of Maytag Washing Machine Company staged a sit-down strike. CIO spokesmen say plant will be picketed Monday unless settlement is reached.

Garrison to set up headquarters in Cleveland immediately. She emphasized that the board has no power of subpoena.

TWO OF "BIG FOUR" PROMISE TO CO-OPERATE
CLEVELAND, June 17.—(AP)—Apprised of the creation of the Federal Steel Mediation Board at Washington, Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, one of the "big four" dependents involved in the strike, declared he had no comment.

At Chicago, Vice President Clarence Randall, of the Inland Steel Company, told reporters "Of course we'll be glad to co-operate with them."

An attorney for the Republic Steel Corporation, in Washington, meanwhile assured Secretary of Labor Perkins of that corporation's co-operation.

Bethlehem Steel was non-committal.

Purnell's Statement.

Purnell later issued a written statement, declaring:

"We have no comment to make on the reported appointment of a mediating committee by the federal government. My great interest just now is the restoration of pay rolls so that our employees may resume their lawful occupations."

"A large number of employees are pressing us to open our gates so that they can go back to work under the same conditions as those which prevailed when work was prevented; and if we develop that the proper law enforcement officials can give them the protection to work as citizens and taxpayers to which they are entitled, it is of course the logical result."

Purnell's "no comment" found reflection in a similar noncommittal attitude by John Owens, Ohio CIO strike chief, and by a spokesman at the Cleveland headquarters of the huge Republic corporation, one of the four independent steel companies — the other two are Bethlehem and Inland—which have steadfastly refused to sign labor contracts.

Peaceful Sit-Down.

In contrast to the federal "peace" move, Owens girded his forces for a new strategic attack on steel, threatening a projected back-to-work movement in the great mills of the Ohio Mahoning valley would inevitably result in a sit-down strike.

The plan, Owens said, called for the strikers to join the back-to-work movement along with non-strikers genuinely anxious to start the wheels of industry rolling again.

Once inside, however, they would refuse to work "holding the fort" until company officials signed the CIO contracts covering hours, wages and union recognition.

CIO picket line leaders in Johnstown, Pa., shrugged at the suggestion of a "truce" and said their lines would stand fast on the seven-mile front of Bethlehem's Cambria works.

OFFICER WINS PLEA FOR COURT TRIAL

High Tribunal Orders Hearing on Dismissal.

Former Policeman E. M. Blount, of East Point, will be granted a hearing in Fulton superior court on his plea for reinstatement as a result of an order issued yesterday by the state supreme court.

Blount lost a recent court action when his mandamus seeking to force the city to reinstate him was dismissed on demurrer in Fulton superior court.

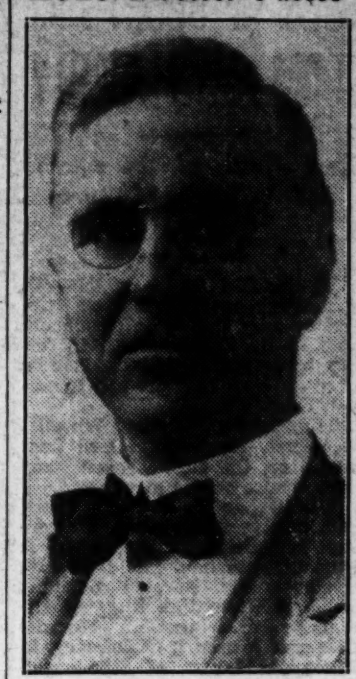

The supreme court held the lower court erred in not granting a hearing as the former policeman had cause of trial. The city had held the policeman was dismissed in an economy move and that he had forfeited his claim when he turned in his badge and uniform.

Effect of the supreme court decision is to grant a superior court hearing on facts of the case. If Blount wins in the lower court, he will be entitled to two years back pay.

Union Jack Is Effective Means Of Identifying English Visitor Here

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Mary Lake, who hails from Braintree, Essex county, England, decided to come to Atlanta to visit Effie Butler, whom she had never seen, this question arose: how would the visitor and her hosts know each other when the former arrived at the railroad station? You see Mary was visiting Effie's cousin, Lucy Ibanett, in Washington, D. C., but before returning to her native England she was anxious to see something of the south. So Effie, who is devoted to her cousin and who is noted for her thoughtfulness of others, invited Mary to visit her. The solution of recognizing each other was solved when Mary stepped from the train waving the Union Jack and singing "God Save the King."

By the way, Mary is one of the most attractive English girls Sally has ever met. She is a decided blonde, possessing violet blue eyes and wavy golden hair. Like Effie she rides horseback exceedingly well and her riding togs are particularly becoming to her tall, slender type of figure.

The friendship between the English visitor and Effie's cousin began when they attended the same school in Switzerland four years ago. Effie declares that Mary and her cousin Lucy look enough alike to be sisters. Had Mary not selected to arrive in Atlanta in typical British manner Effie insists that she would have taken Mary for her cousin who was unable to accompany the visitor to Atlanta.

Mary is thoroughly enjoying her first visit to this section of the United States. Effie has planned for her guest a round of gaieties characteristic of southern entertainment. Among these is the barbecue at which Effie entertains this evening at her home on the Wieuca road when Mary will taste for the first time delicious viands roasted over red hot coals in an out-of-door pit.

MRS. W. O. FOOTE and her son, Billy, literally "took to the air" this week when they flew to New York city for a several days' stay. This is the second time they have gone to the metropolis together just to have a grand time, taking in the latest shows and seeing all the bright lights. Billy, who is a former popular Atlanta, is associated with an airplane company in Montgomery so it is natural that both he and his mother should be very air-minded. They plan to return late in the week.

The Moncys, who have been stationed in the east since their marriage last winter, have been in Griffin as guests of their parents, the Floyd Watsons, recently and made numerous short visits in Atlanta to greet their friends here.

Niskey Lake Forms Background For Helmer-Spinks Wedding

Miss Mary Helmer became the bride of Clyde Spinks Jr. last evening at an impressive twilight service performed at 8 o'clock at picturesque Niskey Lake. An aisle for the bridal party was formed through the garden of the bride's home, leading to the lake over which was erected a platform upon which the bride and groom took their vows.

Rev. M. A. Cooper, pastor of the West End Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends who assembled on the banks of the lake. Prior to and during the ceremony a program of spiritual music was rendered by Mrs. W. B. Griffith, Mrs. C. E. Drummond and Miss Frances Hutchinson.

The platform was banked with palms and other rich greenery and was featured by white trellises and arches. The former formed the altar. Tall pedestals were filled with white gladioli and lilies and were placed on either side of the altar. A small white picket fence encircled the altar and formed an entrance for the wedding party.

Ushers were Asa Candler, Walker Benson and Lawrence Hays, of Atlanta; William Tuck, of Athens, and John Newton, of Madison. Mrs. John Cook Brown, of Grand Rapids, Mich., sister of the bride, the late Mrs. Adel Helmer, was the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Virginia Spinks, Nannell Bagwell and Mary Anne Davis, of Atlanta; Mary Redfern, of Albany, and Betty Chick, of Monroe.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike in models of blue mousseline de sole fashioned over blue taffeta. The tight bodice featured the off the shoulder effect and the long full skirt was self-trimmed with tiny buttons down the front. They all wore large leghorn hats trimmed in pink and blue velvet ribbons which fell in streamer effect to the hems of the skirts. They carried shower bouquets of pink roses and baby's breath tied with pink tulle. The Matron of honor was gowned in a pink model similar to those worn by the bridesmaids.

The bride entered alone and was met at the altar by the groom and Jerry Withers, who acted as best man. Her dainty blond beauty was further enhanced by her wedding gown of white mousseline de sole fashioned with a high neckline trimmed in orange blossoms, seed pearls and posed over white satin. The long full skirt was trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms in shower effect and widened to form a long train. The tulle veil fell in graceful folds over the train and was caught to the bride's hair by a coronet of orange blossoms. The bride carried a shower bouquet of deep purple orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. J. H. Helmer, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in a beige lace gown posed over taffeta and trimmed in lavender. Her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Clyde Spinks, mother of the groom, wore a lovely model of blue lace over blue taffeta of the same shade. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. G. J. Spinks, grandmother of the groom, wore a pastel chignon and her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Mrs. Helmer entertained at an al fresco reception for her daughter and Mr. Spinks. The buffet tables were decorated with quantities of pastel-shaded summer garden flowers. The punch bowls were embedded in mounds of colorful flowers and ferns.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Ruth Williams, R. D. Robinson, W. N. Bagwell, A. Sansing, W. W. Hubbert, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and serving punch were Misses Winona Williams, Nancy Griggs, of Dawson, Ga.; Mary Frances Yates, Nina Fuller, Marjorie Bell, of Elberton, and Mrs. Gordon Heath.

The bride and groom left for their wedding trip to an unannounced destination, and upon their return will reside with Mrs. Helmer at Niskey Lake. The bride traveled in a model of blue crepe with an embroidered organdy blouse completed by a sash of Kelley green. Completing the ensemble was a bolero jacket, blue accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Visit in White House Tremendous Lift to Career of Dancer

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

THERE'S GOOD FORM IN POSTURE

Posture is the backbone of a beautiful figure. The value of good posture as a figure exercise is illustrated perfectly by the curvaceous Joan Blondell. By her own admission, this lovely star does not exercise; from analysis of her posture, I find that she exercises all the time, because holding herself correctly is so important to her.

"That's the one thing I ever did right—I always stood up straight," she said. Miss Blondell doesn't seem to look in a mirror to see how she stands. She can tell by her waistline. "One should always feel tight about the waistline," Joan explained, "with the muscles firm."

Standing as tall as possible gives you muscular control—but don't think it isn't exercise! Girls who slump are not using their muscles. They simply drape their weight on their bones and let their ligaments—not their muscles—do the work. Standing erect is no effort for Joan, who has trained the right muscles to carry her weight. Even as a little girl she used to bring home the posture prizes.

How is your standing?

Joan Blondell is a firm believer in what posture can do for the figure. "You can be pretty heavy, and if you carry your weight well, with tummy, back and hips flat, your curves will be in the right places," she advises.

She has never worn a girdle. She has always seen to it that her muscles were strong enough to hold her figure in line. Now, at any time, were these muscles allowed to become flabby. After the arrival of her son, she went right to work on corrective exercises to restore the stretched muscles to normal tone. Today her perfect measurements are: Bust, 35 inches; waist, 26 inches; and hips, 37 inches. Without muscular streamlining she would appear large on the screen. She is able to keep her weight at the optimum because of good muscle tone and no flabby fat.

According to this posture-perfect star, posture is even a cure for weak ankles. Here's the way to do it: Stand with knees apart, turned slightly out, and with the weight falling squarely on the ball of the feet. This position throws most of the weight to the outer borders of the feet, thereby strengthening ankles and arches. You might practice the exercise several times a day.

Never stand with the weight on the heels or on one foot if you want to keep your figure in lovely alignment. Always stand as tall as possible. Stand, sit and walk beautifully, and you won't need special exercise.

Guest of Mrs. Roosevelt Enjoys Informality, Dinners With Family

By IHA WOLFERT.

NEW YORK, June 17.—"Being a guest at the White House," says 21-year-old Roberta Jones, ballet dancer who became one at the invitation of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, "is all that you would expect, and then some. It's exciting and grand and impressive and every little thing that happens is an adventure."

"At the end, you just can't remember any particular thing that did happen, except that you know you've had the best time ever. I guess it's about like winning a prize, with serious engagement on the night of the junior prom. Sort of indescribable."

Pretty little Roberta, of St. Petersburg, Fla., dark-haired and bright-eyed, has been a professional dancer for the last three years in hotels and night clubs and made one tour through South America as prime ballerina of the Pomeroy ballet, a troupe of blonde girls who could shake a shapely leg. But she is a serious dancer—modernistic and ballet, studied with the great Martha Graham—with serious aspirations on the art, and the honky-tonks were all beginner stuff.

As Roberta Jones, she was introduced to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt by Earl Miller, director of personnel of the New York State Department of Correction. She danced for Mrs. Roosevelt at a party in Hyde Park and stayed the summer. When she came to Washington at the beginning of June to fill a two-week engagement, Mrs. Roosevelt would not hear of her staying at some stuffy hotel, but insisted on her putting up at the White House.

"The White House is run very much like a home," said Miss Jones, "with certain exceptions, of course. In the morning you rise when you please and can have breakfast in your room or in the south portico, an open unscreeened porch. Generally I am in the habit of sleeping late, but I could not in Washington. I was too excited."

"I spent many of my mornings in Mrs. Roosevelt's office, waiting her work. She is a remarkable woman and a pleasure to watch."

"Generally, the guests spent their days sight-seeing. We drove to Mount Vernon and the supreme court and other buildings. However, in the two weeks I stayed, there was only one formal dinner when everybody dressed. The rest of the time, only friends of the Roosevelt family and relatives were present. Then the women wore evening dress, but the men, including the President, wore business suits."

"We were advised in the morning at what time dinner would be served, and White House etiquette—of which the usher informed me—prescribed that we arrive five minutes before hand and stand waiting until the President entered and was seated. Mrs. Roosevelt came with us five minutes ahead of time and stood with us until her husband took his place at the table."

"I noticed that both Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt were adept at keeping the conversation going. At the small dinners, the talk was general across the table and it was of the warm, easy sort. Sometimes it became genuinely witty. "The conversation was about everything under the sun, the day's news, personalities, family affairs. The President answered all questions freely, but I noticed that, by common consent, everyone kept away from controversial topics."

"At the formal dinner, Vice President Garner and Mrs. Garner, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Mrs. Morgenthau were present. They are charming people. Mr. Garner has a really fine quality of homespun about him."

While in Washington Miss Jones danced nightly at 10 o'clock and was driven to and from her job of work by a uniformed chauffeur in a White House car. "I was always back at about 11 o'clock."

Roberta Jones, who has danced professionally in hotels and night clubs for three years, has completed a two-week stay in the White House while filling an engagement in the capital city.

Everybody was pretty well on his way to bed about that time. The visit to the White House and the publicity that it caused have given her career a tremendous lift. Movie companies have been testing her steadily since Monday. "I'm ready for them," she says. "I studied dramatics all last winter."

Hollywood Today

By HAROLD HEFFERMAN

WAITING IS MAJOR TASK OF ACTORS ON FILM SETS.

HOLLYWOOD, June 17.—Watching the stars kill time: "Double or nothing," at Paramount—"Some days there are when you can't lay up a nickel's worth of film," mutters Director Ted Reed, as he fretfully paces the sidelines, awaiting readiness of a fancy lagoon setting on the studio's big open-air tank stage.

Carpenters hammer down braces for three fantastic bridges spanning a tiny lake. Prop men splash wet-deep in the water, determined to make those little gondolas float properly. Two dozen big arc lamps flicker on and off as electricians try for correct wattage and angles.

Only members of the cast are inactive. But the veterans are never bothered by those long waits. A film actor's average day is made up of seven hours of time-killing and an hour of actual shooting. Thus, patience is one of the prime requisites for success as an actor.

Bing Crosby is sprawled out on the steps of a plaster night club front. He can't go inside and sit at a table. If he walked across that threshold, he'd plunge 30 feet into a mud hole. A cigaret droops from Bing's lips as he listens in a bored way to the conversation of three gag men. But they're not talking about "double or nothing." They're stealing a little Paramount time trying out jokes for Bing's next radio program.

Martha Raye, Hollywood's first June bride, is content to wait, too. She sits in a camp chair, telling four wide-eyed extra girls how she came to take that fall in her home the other night. Sprained her back and fractured a finger, but still she can limp through her scenes. Martha's face suddenly lights up bright enough to dim an arc lamp. Husband Buddy Westmore comes over and embraces his bride. They kiss affectionately. Martha has forgotten her aching bones, the extra girls—and the picture can go hang. The extras become embarrassed and start to stumble away. Martha calls them back. "Don't run away," she says. "This is all right—we're still married, you know!"

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Confidentiality is guaranteed. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I always made the proud boast that when I got married I wouldn't live with in-laws, yet I am married and am living with in-laws and my husband's mother and I don't get along well. We have had some pretty tough quarrels and my husband has always taken his mother's side in every disagreement. Like every other wife who regrets her bargain, I have played with the thought of leaving them to themselves but I can't make up my mind to break up our home. To make matters worse, the mother bought herself a nice little house near by and I took comfort from that for a while but she is still with us. Won't you tell me how I can make my husband understand that his attitude is destroying my love for him?

B. M.

Answer: Your husband is in such a pet with you at the moment that it wouldn't do a bit of good to show him how he is destroying your love for him. He is much more concerned with having peace at home. Not that he deserves it or that he has taken the right way of getting it; but simply that when a man puts his wife down in his mother's home he expects them to love one another because they love him and he expects them to get on like a couple of angels. When they don't he usually blames his wife.

There is precious little a wife can do in the case of her husband's taking sides with his mother, except to avoid the disputes that show up his allegiance. The relationship between him and his mother is as firm and unbreakable as if it were cemented. Tell him that you are on the outside and that is what maddens her.

If you can control your temper and your tongue, make peace with the mother-in-law and quit quarreling with your husband, life will be much sweeter, and you will have a better chance of making him see the injustice he is doing you. This is a hard program to follow and it is a hard-hearted husband who will put his wife through it but many a one does. In this case the only cure is a wife is the thought that she has a reasonable expectation of longer life than her mother-in-law and when the old lady is gone to join her heavenly host, she will have her home and her husband to herself. That's worth waiting for, isn't it?

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I guess, like many other girls, I've fallen in love with someone that will be hard to get. He's the type that kids, and goes on with other girls. How can I make him my own? He tells me all his girl friends and his different affairs. Is this the sign that he likes me or does he do this to all the girls? He tells me he likes the best, only I don't think he tells them his affairs. I want him to be more than a friend. Please tell me how I can get him.

K. K.

Answer: For whatever reason your girl friend confides in and about his various affairs, he is giving you the hook with which to catch him, if he can be caught. You have only to pay close attention to his confidences and his comments to learn what type of girl he admires. Listen carefully and lay out your role accordingly.

Don't make the mistake of becoming serious before he is ready to be serious or you will scare him off. Don't let him guess your secrets that you love him—until he tells you a secret. Be gay and light-hearted, laugh and answer his playfulness with playfulness.

A boy out for a good time is usually bored by a girl whose heart is heavy with love and when a boy is bored he gets away in record time.

Beauty, According To You

(Posed by Madge Evans.)

A Treatment That Will Keep Your Hair Beautiful, Regardless of Weather

By LILLIAN MAE.

Unfortunately, beautiful hair doesn't just happen—or I should say, more properly, beautiful hair doesn't stay beautiful if it is neglected.

Beautiful hair must necessarily be clean hair, though not necessarily hair that is washed every few days. Brushing with a long, flexible bristled brush always upward and away from the head, does much toward cleansing by removing surface dust and dirt as well as stimulating circulation and evenly distributing the natural oils. Take care that the brush sweeps the scalp as well as the hair, and wipe brush frequently on a clean towel while using.

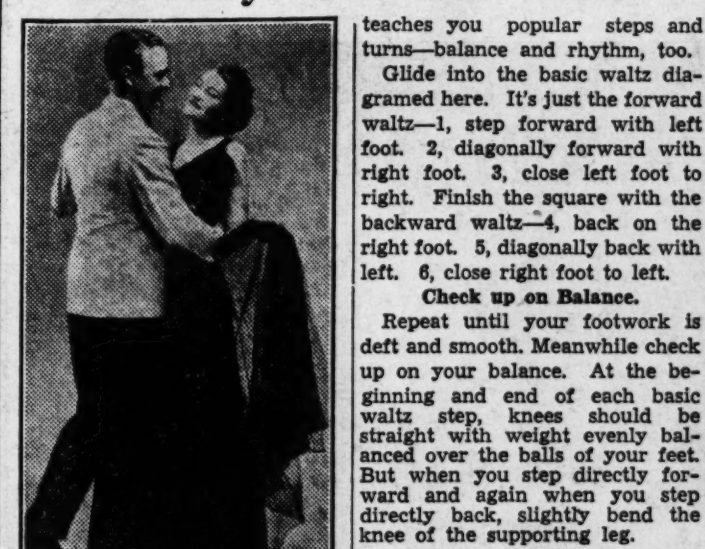

Between shampoos, follow brushing treatment once or twice a week with a tonic which is made by a firm specializing in fine things for the hair. It comes in three types: for dry, oily and falling, dandruffy hair. Divide the hair into small strands and apply the proper tonic for your own needs with pads of cotton directly to the scalp. These tonics cleanse so that the frequency of shampooing may be cut in half—and they do not disturb your wave, whether natural or permanent.

When washing the hair be sure to use a shampoo that is not too strong or drying, and never apply a cake of soap directly to the hair. I can very heartily recommend to you a grand liquid shampoo made from pure castile soap and olive oil in such proportions as to make it easy and pleasant to use and which leaves the hair immaculate, with exquisite highlights.

The same firm offers a creme wave set which, applied to the hair while it is wet from a shampoo, or after using the tonic, will help you to set or to retain a beautiful wave and luster. Dull, harsh, bleached or weak hair responds immediately to its use.

I'll be glad to tell you the names of tonics, shampoo and creme wave set if you'll call me at my office in The Constitution building. Do not write unless you live outside Atlanta, in which case be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Home Institute It's Easy to Dance Well

teaches you popular steps and turns—balance and rhythm, too. Glide into the basic waltz diagrams here. It's just the forward waltz—1, step forward with left foot. 2, diagonally forward with right foot. 3, close left foot to right. Finish the square with the backward waltz—4, back on the right foot. 5, diagonally back with left foot. 6, close right foot to left.

Check up on Balance. Repeat until your footwork is deft and smooth. Meanwhile check up on your balance. At the beginning and end of each basic waltz step, knees should be straight with weight evenly balanced over the balls of your feet. But when you step directly forward and again when you step directly back, slightly bend the knee of the supporting leg.

Other easy diagrams lead you into fascinating waltz turns. Then merrily on into the fox-trot, tango and rumba.

Our 40-page booklet, Social Dancing Self-Taught, is as helpful as a teacher. Diagrams and clear directions for 26 important steps. All about leading and following, too.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday.—We got off the train at 7:15 this morning in New York city. We had a young friend breakfast with us, and I was about to start out to do some shopping at 8 o'clock when I discovered the shop didn't open until 9:30. This gave me an extra half hour to go over some of my mail and then I started to do some shopping for my new little guest house at Hyde Park.

Home again at 11 and ready to leave at 11:30 with President Edward A. Markley, of the John Marshall College of Law, and two ladies. They took me over to Jersey City for luncheon before the graduation exercises at the college. Senator and Mrs. Moore were present, but the poor senator could not even have any lunch because he had been sent for to return to Washington. When he arose to say a few words, he remarked that he was leaving at 1 o'clock but would be in Washington at 1:30, a fact I have often found very convenient after daylight saving begins in New York city.

On behalf of the college, Mrs. Moore presented me with a writing case, which will be extremely useful on my travels. Then we all proceeded to the building where the exercises were held.

John Marshall College was started a few years ago by a group of young men who felt that an opportunity should be given to the young people of New Jersey to have two years of college and three years of law without leaving their own state. Under the laws of the state of New Jersey they can take their bar exams. Most of the young people are working their way through so they have afternoon and evening classes.

The valedictorian of his class, John O. McGuire, put a great deal of fire into his speech. I am told that his father's death a few years ago, he has been the head of the family, kept it together and earned his way through college by working in a New York bank. It is easy to see he has qualities of leadership which should mean he will make his mark in the next few years.

These boys and girls are fortunate, even though they may not know it, in that they do have to take up their responsibilities when young. They mature more quickly and don't waste so much time. Before the exercises we had the usual photographs taken, which took some time. The exercises themselves were very delightful but somewhat long, so toward the end I began to wonder if I would get home in time to write you this column.

However, here I am and the day is behind me and I shall long remember the kindness of Dean Ormsby and President Markley, and the vivid interest they have in their graduates. I feel much honored to have received a degree from this college.

This is the last of my commencements, I think, for this year. I am sorry, for I like the contact with American youth and the confidence it gives me in the future of the country.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Editor Grover Hall, of the Montgomery Advertiser, wrote a leading editorial a few days ago on the passing of Dr. Charles A. Stakely, for 37 years minister at the First Baptist church in Montgomery, and a graduate of Mercer University, ordained at LaGrange in 1880, and afterward the Baptist minister at Elberton, Hartwell, Curtis, and finally at the First Baptist church in Washington, D. C.

Many Georgians knew and loved Dr. Stakely, and I think you will be glad to know that Mr. Hall's remarkable tribute gives an interpretation of the man which only a long and intimate friend could have written. I wish I might quote every word of the extended editorial, it is so good, but you will let me pass along sentences from several paragraphs which indicate the sweep of the great man's life.

"Friends? He had troops of friends. He was as rich in friendships as Croesus was in gold. Everybody in Montgomery knew and loved Dr. Stakely. He was the kind of man whose hand you reached for in the pulpit, a compassionate, wondrously understanding man. He had his teaching of three careers—the law, teaching, and the ministry. At first he studied for the law. Had he entered the law, he would have been a success. He was at Atlanta, he might have been a great campus personality. On any campus he would have been a Socratic figure. But Dr. Stakely gave his life to the gospel ministry. He never distorted the gospel. He never said a silly thing in the pulpit. He never told a joke or made a wise-crack in the pulpit, which is surprising when one remembers he was as witty as Will Rogers in private conversation. He loved to write, and The Advertiser treasures the fact that he wrote for this paper a column of news for many years. He was one of the rarest personalities that ever walked up and down Dexter avenue. God rest his soul!"

Dark Sheers. One of the simplest ways to guard your bathroom window is to use dark colored yet thin curtain material. Navy blue fine net curtains, with white moss or ball fringe edging will not only assure privacy but will let in a surprising amount of air and light and will give a striking effect in an otherwise sober bathroom. Dark brown with yellow fringe would be pleasing, especially if you carried out the color combination in wall paper and lines.

Then you can invest in roller type blinds, with tiny slats, much like the porch shades that we've been using so many years. These also let in plenty of light, but the slats are small enough to give the effect of a solid blind from outside. The nice part is that these come in all colors and are particularly lovely in cool pastels—shell pink blinds in a bathroom with cocoa brown accessories would be attractive and unusual. Or aqua shades in an otherwise beige bathroom.

Another trick is to make a waterproofed chintz shade to fit your window. Here you take the roller pattern from this and reattach the shade you have made to the roller. Then when the shade is pulled down, day or night, you have a decorative window instead of a blank white space. These rubberized chintzes are very attractive. One design we've seen alternates large squares of pale rose and beige, small Anne Hathaway figures prominently centered in the beige squares. These shades are particularly attractive.

Present were Mrs. Annie L. Byars, state attendant and guardian of the grove; Mrs. Helen Shearin, North Georgia district financial secretary; Mesdames Blanche Schofield, Florence Scarborough, Rena Horne and Grace Lawrence.

ENGLAND'S QUEENS

No. 53

Victoria

In the early hours of June 20, 1837, the 18-year-old Princess Victoria slipped on a dressing gown and came down to receive the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord Chamberlain at Kensington Palace. They told her her uncle, William IV, was dead. She was Queen.

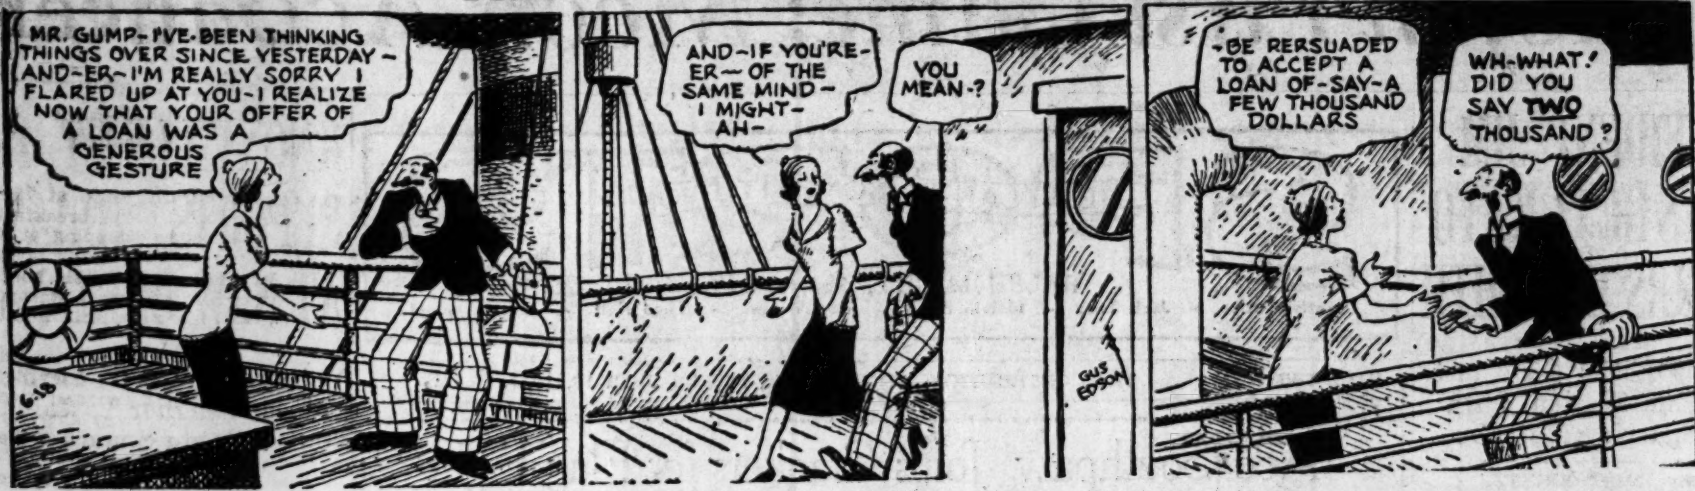

Three years later she stood before the altar beside her cousin, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. She loved him dearly, but never forgot that she was Queen. Her firmness and dignity remained with her always.

After his death in 1861, the Queen lived so long in retirement that the people murmured. But her double processions of 1867 and 1897 were triumphs. She had become the symbol of the Nation's greatness.

WIN IS FIRST
AT RICKWOOD
SINCE MAY, '36

Maltzberger Is Winner,
Barons Rally To Win
Second Game, 8 to 2.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 17.—For the first time at Rickwood since May 19, 1936, the Atlanta Crackers defeated the Birmingham Barons Thursday night, 11-10, in the first game of their double-header.

The Barons came back with a seven-run attack in the fifth inning of the second game to get an even break in the night twin bill. The score was 8 to 2.

They knocked Larry Miller from the mound and Bill Beckman suffered along with him with Trexler finally being called in. Cy Moore went the route for the Barons.

By winning the second game, the Barons held third place over the Crackers by a few points.

HILL GOES HITLESS.
Hill went hitless in the second game and it was the first time in two years he had failed to get a hit at Rickwood.

In a parade of pitchers, the Crackers took the first game after being seven runs behind in the fourth inning. Two five-run rallies, one in the fifth and the other in the seventh, gave the Crackers a lead that the Barons could not overcome, try as hard as they may.

Seven pitchers were used, all told, with Gordon Maltzberger getting credit for the victory after relieving Jim Trexler in the fourth, and Lefty Charlie George, who replaced Art Jones in the sixth, got credit for the defeat.

DURHAM FINISHES.
Bobby Durham finished the game for the Crackers, while John Hutchings and Bobby Coombs followed Jones and George for the Steves.

While he didn't get credit for Tuesday night's defeat in the first game, it was Jones who was last defeated by the Crackers here last year. In the second game of the season here last year, the Crackers beat Jones, 7 to 1. He was saved from the defeat Thursday night when George replaced him with the tying run on base. Jones, incidentally, started against Atlanta five times last year, lost four of them and was knocked out in the fifth attempt. Both teams made 15 hits in the first game.

The Crackers, victorious for the first time in their last 15 games at Rickwood, got off to a two-run lead in the first inning of the second game. Luby and Hooks singled and both scored on Rose's single.

ABOARD U. S. S. DICKERSON WITH GEORGIA TECH NAVAL UNIT, June 17.—By noon today your correspondent had managed to give Lieutenant Roy Mundorff at least five snappy salutes and the lieutenant was feeling somewhat better. It was just yesterday that Lieutenant Mundorff was parading through Savannah in his new uniform of whites. He felt a bit self-conscious in it but he was doing rather well. At last he paused for a bit of rest and reflection.

A fat lady halted by Mr. Mundorff. In her arms was a sticky-faced little girl baby.

"Mr. Policeman," said the fat lady, "would you hold Precious for me while I go make a purchase in this store?"

Mr. Mundorff was humiliated no little by this experience and so we have been saluting him with great rapidity all day to restore his morale.

The cruise of the Georgia Techs is to start in the morning at 5 o'clock. At that hour the tide will be at the flood and the trim destroyers, the Dickerson and the Decatur, will move down the Savannah river and out to sea to join, at a rendezvous some 200 miles out, the destroyers bearing the students from Harvard, Yale and Northwestern.

It was like old home week coming back to the Dickerson after not having seen the ship since last summer and the cruise of that year.

Captain Van Rathbun, making his last cruise as master of the Dickerson, and Lieutenants Bob Fulton and "Pops" Perry were there from last year. Fulton was once coxswain of the Navy crew and later was recalled to Annapolis as assistant coach. He is a Mississippian and but lately united the states of Mississippi and South Carolina by marrying a charming young lady from Charleston.

It was swell getting back on deck. And as we stood there up from below came Murchison, the dusky mess boy promoted recently to the No. 1 boy. It was Murchison who last year, with marvelous understanding, always saw to it that the choice dishes were twice passed to your correspondent without any asking for same.

With these old friends and with Coaches Roy Mundorff and George Griffin along from Tech, it is rather sure to be a great trip.

Dr. Ed Milam, of Jacksonville, a former Vanderbilt University man, is along and bunking in the same compartment with your correspondent. It is, incidentally, the same compartment as last year.

And the same upper bunk with the steel pipe just a couple of feet above the bunk on which your old partner used to bang his head on awakening each morning.

And so, we are all together. That is almost so. Dr. Harold Friedman, of the Georgia Tech faculty, is assigned to the Decatur with its splendid set of officers.

But, at any rate, it is starting out like a real cruise.

A REAL SMARTNESS.

There is a real smartness about these ships. I stood this morning and looked at them for a long, long time. They are more than 300 feet long and at the beam are not much more than 40 feet wide.

They are clean as a pin. And the officers and men keep them that way. The

CONFIDENT JIM
SAYS HE'LL KAYO
LOUIS IN EIGHTH

Champ Looks Good in 5-Round Session With Sparring Mates.

By EDDIE BRIETZ.
GRAND BEACH, Mich., June 17.—(AP)—A well-trained and supremely confident James J. Braddock sent out the word today that he'll knock out Joe Louis in eight rounds or less when they class in Comiskey Park, Chicago, next Tuesday night.

If the 31-year-old champion has any private misgivings as to his ability to come back after two years of ring idleness, he is doing a swell job of keeping them to himself. He is the most unconcerned man in camp as he rounds into shape for the first defense of the title he won in his upset victory over Max Baer in 1935.

Jimmy would rather talk about anything except the fight, but when he is lured into a discussion of his chances against the once-famous Brown Bomber, his frankness is refreshing.

"I look for a good, tough fight," he said. "Maybe it will be the hardest fight I've ever had. I might even be belted to the deck a couple of times. But I'll get up and I'll knock Louis out."

"I'm not kidding myself about his ability to flatten anybody he hits squarely. But I don't believe he's good enough to knock me out. The boys have always found that was pretty tough to do."

"I've seen Louis in all his important fights. He has weaknesses and I know just what and where they are. If he fights me like he has most of his other opponents, he'll go in to slug and that means he'll have to lead the fighting. I'm a good counter puncher and right there is where it will come in handy."

Neither Braddock nor Trainer Doc Robb think his long layoff has slowed the champion up much. Robb says Jim is in as good trim as he ever was. Braddock looks in perfect condition.

The champion boxed five rounds with as many sparring mates today and showed the first traces of viciousness he has shown since he started boxing five weeks ago.

He belted his sparring partners around with a short left hook, but missed frequently with his looping right. On the other hand, at least one of the stooges, Max Rosch, of Dallas, found Braddock easy to hit with left-hand blows.

Braddock plans to do six rounds Saturday and four or five Sunday. He'll move into Chicago Monday afternoon.

Referee for Fight Is Still a Secret.

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—One of five referees sitting at the ringside at Comiskey Park next Tuesday night will receive a "nod" as James J. Braddock and his negro challenger, Joe Louis, climb into the ring to battle for the world's heavyweight championship.

That nod, coming from Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, means that the referee chosen will climb into the ring with Braddock and Louis. Who will be third man in the ring will be known only to Chairman Triner and his associate on the commission, George F. Getz, millionaire coal operator and sportsman. Their secret will be withheld until just before the battle starts.

The five referees are "Little Phil" Collins, Dave Miller, Tommy Thomas, Joseph McNamara and Frank "Spike" McAdams. The referee selected will receive $1,000 for his services.

JACOBS PLEASED
By Ticket Sales.

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs is walking again. That's the indication that ticket sales for the James J. Braddock-Joe Louis championship fight next Tuesday night are moving along to Jacobs' complete satisfaction.

Today, the man behind the big battle was bouncing all around at fight headquarters. He made three trips to the battle site to supervise 80 workmen busily constructing the 25,000 ring-side seats. The 22-foot ring in which the champion and his negro challenger will battle was erected squarely over second base of the White Sox playing field.

With the ring up and the seats

Ace Southpaw Joins Crackers for Flag Fight

Leo Moon, eccentric and clever Knoxville southpaw, yesterday became a Cracker as Atlanta sent cash and Gordon Maltzberger to the Smokies in return for the 17-game winner of 1936. Moon, who is in top form, joins the Crackers for flag fight tonight. He is expected to be a big help in the Crackers' determined pennant drive.

Al Williams EnRoute To Join Buford Nine

Former Cracker Hurler Refuses To Be Farmed To N. Y. Penn League.

By ROY WHITE
Almon Williams, former Cracker hurler who was released Wednesday by the Philadelphia Athletics to the Williamsport club in the New York-Penn league, is on his way to join the Buford team, it was learned by The Constitution Thursday.

After being farmed to the Williamsport team, Williams wired John Allen, president of the Buford team, asking for a place on Buford's team. "I have been farmed out and am not going to report—may I pitch for you?" Williams' wire read.

Allen wired Williams that Buford is in need of pitchers and would welcome the former Cracker hurler with open arms.

A return wire was received Thursday from Williams. It read—Am leaving Washington tonight and will arrive at Buford Friday afternoon, 3:17 p. m.

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta baseball team, was fond of Williams and when he learned the Waxahachie, Texas, right-hander was dissatisfied with being sent to the New York-Penn league, he immediately communicated with both Connie Mack, of the Athletics, and Allen, at Buford.

Mann in need of pitchers for the Crackers kept the wires hot last night in an effort to land Williams. Realizing that Williams will be barred from organized baseball for a period of five years and that it may mean his retirement from organized ball, Allen said last night that the big right-hander will not be signed or used for several days at least.

"I would not do anything to jeopardize Williams' or any other player's chance in organized baseball and if it means a five-year or longer suspension, Williams will not pitch for Buford. He asked for the chance and I granted it the same as I would for any other capable player," Allen added.

Meanwhile Williams is en route to Buford and will arrive at 3:17 o'clock this afternoon. Almon Williams was the sensation of the American league at the beginning of this year. He pitched the opening game for the Athletics as a relief pitcher and beat the Washington Senators, with President Roosevelt looking on as an honor guest.

He then added one more victory and along with Bud Thomas and Harry Kelley, other former Cracker hurlers, aided the Athletics in taking first place in the American league race temporarily.

Not being used to a cold climate, Williams pulled up with a lame arm and has not been effective recently.

He was ordered Wednesday to report to the Williamsport club, but refused and immediately sought a place with Buford's team. Williams won 17 and lost 7 last year with the Crackers.

REACH SEMI-FINALS.
WILMINGTON, Del., June 17.—(UP)—Richard Bennett, retiring captain of the University of California tennis team, and Robert Kamrath, University of Texas, reached the semi-final round of the men's singles today in the 29th annual Delaware state grass court championships.

KNOXVILLE STAR REPORTS TODAY AT NEW ORLEANS

Veteran in Top Form; Major Leaguer To Join Atlanta Soon.

By THAD HOLT.
Leo Moon, of Knoxville, perhaps the leading lefthander in the Southern league over a period of the last 10 years, will don a Cracker uniform tonight as the Southern league champions open a series at New Orleans.

The 36-year-old lefthander was acquired yesterday in a deal that sent Gordon Maltzberger, rookie righthander who pitched last year for Macon, and a considerable amount of cash to the Smokies.

President Earl Mann, in making the announcement of a deal which should figure prominently in the Crackers' bid for a third straight pennant, announced that Moon would arrive in Atlanta this morning and take a plane for the Crescent City this afternoon, arriving at 4:10 p. m. Had he not pitched for Knoxville yesterday, he would have hurried tonight. He gave Little Rock only three runs in nine innings, leaving the game at that time.

Moon is the first winning lefthander the Crackers have had in three seasons. Last year he won 17 games and lost 9 for the Smokies, who finished a bad sixth. His record to date in the current campaign is six wins and four defeats. In three recent starts he bested Nashville twice, by 2-1 scores and blanked Chattanooga, 1-0.

FOUR SOUTHPAWS.
The Crackers will soon have four southpaws. Jim Trexler, Johnny Michaels, who shows promise of coming through, and Moon, are now on the list. A lefthander from a major league club is to join the Crackers immediately.

While Moon is considered an old man as pitchers go, his arm is still young and he has shown that

WARREN, BUFORD TO PLAY TONIGHT

Warren and Buford, bitter Georgia semi-pro rivals, will continue their 14-game series at 8:30 o'clock tonight on the Warren athletic field on Fair Street. Buford, runners up in the national semi-pro tournament last year, holds a decided edge in the series, winning five of the first six games.

Jonas Butzman, former New Orleans right-hander who was signed Tuesday by Buford, will pitch for the north Georgians against Warren in tonight's game. Cleo Jeter was scheduled to pitch, but will be held in reserve for relief duty if necessary.

Tom Harper, hefty righthander of the Warren pitching staff, will oppose Butzman tonight in what should be a pitchers' duel from start to finish. Harper is the only Warren pitcher to appear in the win column against Buford.

MAULDIN, ROSSI BATTLE TONIGHT

Atlanta's meanest man, Gentleman John Mauldin, will pit his skill tonight against Count Petros Rossi in the feature match at the West End arena.

The count's black locks and Van Dyke beard deceive opponents as he steps delicately into the ring as if he were embarking from a gondola in his native Italy.

But previous opponents have learned to be wary of the Italian peer, whose tactics in past matches have earned for him the reputation of "the terror from Italy."

In a previous match here between the two, however, the count, somewhat off his usual form, received one of the most terrific licks of his life.

Fans who have seen Buck Lawson, Silver Fox from Knoxville, Tenn., wrestle here can vouch for his clean style of wrestling. But when he engages "Wild" Bill Collins, of Atlanta, who makes his first appearance here in several months, they will find that Lawson will probably have to change his tactics.

Another old face will be seen in action in the opening 30-minute skirmish when Karl Von Hoffman, German, who is also noted for his foul tactics, faces stern opposition from Tiger Joe Perona, California Italian.

The program will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

Charlie One Up on McWilliams After 14 Holes.

By KENNETH GREGORY
CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 17.—(AP)—Interrupted by a gale-like wind, hail and rainstorm, the 35th annual Southern amateur golf tournament was thrown into overtime play today in the midst of the second round as a terrific deluge washed out seven of the eight second round matches.

Only a sun-tanned Floridian, tall Carl Dann, Jr., of Orlando, reached the quarter-finals in the opening day's double "sudden death" elimination rounds in play twice halted by driving downpours.

YATES ONE UP.
Charlie Yates, of Atlanta, former western and national intercollegiate champion who is competing in the Southern for the first time since 1932, was only one up on Billy McWilliams, of Savannah, Ga., when play was interrupted as they drove to the 15th green. There McWilliams hit a fine drive down the middle and Yates landed in a trap. They will place their balls there tomorrow for resumption of play.

In the same predicament as the Atlantan, who won the qualifying medal yesterday with a 36-hole total of 146. Two over par, was slender Freddie Haas of New Orleans. Haas the current Canadian title-holder and winner of the southern crown in 1934, was one up on Bayard Storm, of Charlotte, through nine holes. They drove to the 10th but were halted before completing their second shots.

Yates survived the first round with a 5 to 4 decision over Al Mailhes, of Shreveport, La., Notre Dame team player. McWilliams eliminated Robert Dunkelberger, of High Point, N. C., 5 to 4. Haas had little trouble troubling Tommy Barnes, of Atlanta, by the same count and Storm knocked out Jack Heath, of Charlotte, runnerup here in 1927.

Erwin Laxton, of Charlotte, former University of North Carolina star, had Bill Snow, of High Point, three up through 12 holes when they called it quits. Laxton was only one over par for the distance. He was forced to the limit in surviving the opening skirmish with Ed Michaels, of Greensboro, N. C., winning one up on the 19th hole. In one of several upset decisions, Snow trounced Al Dowtin, the

'Any Old Port in a Storm' --- Cherokee Finalists Rest --- Unusual Shot Puzzles Foursome

During the heavy downpour in the Cherokee Golf Club invitation tournament yesterday at Cedartown, Oscar Cone, Rome, left, and Red Roberts, Dalton, the winner, sought shelter under an umbrella. They played the last five holes on the outgoing round in a rainstorm. And they finished the match in a steady rain. The picture at the right shows Howard Gore, Austell, appealing to members of his foursome—Mosley Roan, Joe Hollis and L. F. Hancock—as to what to do about a shot that bounced back into the cuff of his trousers. The Cherokee tournament produced many novel happenings, but this shot topped them all.

Shot Backfires Into Player's Pants Cuff

BY JACK TROY

CEDARTOWN, June 17.—In a tournament which produced the middle-aged man's answer to better golf—namely, a saddle mule named "Beck"—there also was named a shot that must go down on record as one of the most unusual ever witnessed.

And the question is: What would you or you do in a similar situation?

Howard Gore, Austell, playing in the fourth flight, was attempting an explosion shot out of a sand trap. The explosion was okay, but the ball, hitting the rim of the trap, backfired and landed in the cuff of his trousers.

The rules don't specifically cover such a shot. It is not, in the stricter sense, an unplayable lie.

There is one instance on record where a player, in a major tournament, hit a ball that landed in a spectator's trouser cuff.

And what did the player do?

TAKES OFF PANTS.
Well, sir, he requested the spectators to remove his pants for the sake of saving wear and tear on the cuff as the spectator held the pants out.

For the sake of propriety—Howard Gore is every inch a gentleman—he could not remove his trousers in the presence of female members of the gallery.

He was playing in a foursome that included Mosley Roan, Joe Hollis and L. F. Hancock, of Newnan. Gore appealed to them, but they were rather in the dark as to what to do.

Finally, they decided it would be best to have Gore to remove the ball and drop it over his shoulder. But that isn't the answer.

The other incident was revealed by Joe Hollis, who has been president of the Newnan club for the past six years. He has been playing golf, man and boy, for 25 years and has never won a trophy. That must be a record.

Phils Best Dean, 13-7; Yanks Increase Lead

Loss Is Fifth for Dizzy, Who Is Kayoed in Seventh.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean remarked he didn't feel very well when he took the mound for the St. Louis Cardinals against the Philadelphia Phillies today and the ace hurler felt worse when the game ended. Philadelphia won, 13 to 7, and Dean didn't last out the contest.

It was the first victory for the Phils over St. Louis this season and ended a Cardinal winning streak at five. Dean now has lost five and won nine games.

Chuck Klein, of the Phils, walked his first time up and then got four consecutive hits, including two doubles.

Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize, of the Cards, hit successive homers in the eighth. It was Medwick's 12th of the season and the second for Mize in the game, his other coming in the first.

AMERICA PLACES 2 IN SEMI-FINALS; BITSY DROPS OUT

Grant Suffering From Cold; Doctors Guard Against Influenza.

LONDON, June 17.—(AP)—America qualified two men for the semi-finals of the Queens Club tennis tournament today and lost the services, temporarily, of the "Atlanta Atom," Bryan Grant. While Don Budge and Wayne Sabin were moving into the last four along with England's Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, Grant was forced to quit after two sets of his match with Fumiteru Nakano, of Japan, because of a lame shoulder, aftermath of a severe cold the Georgian contracted two weeks ago.

Obviously concerned about Grant's condition, Walter L. Pate, non-playing captain of the American Davis Cup team, rushed him off to a physician for prompt treatment.

FEAR INFLUENZA.

The little southerner, suffering from a congestion in the shoulder, was put to bed early tonight under the care of a physician who guarded him against the possibility of influenza.

The doctor's examination failed to disclose the exact nature of Bitty's ailment except that it's a congestion apparently of an inflammatory nature and not a muscular strain. Heat applications were applied.

The doctor will make another examination tomorrow and hopes then to establish definitely what's wrong. Grant was described as "quite comfortable" tonight.

housekeeper who fancies herself neat could learn things from the destroyers.

They are gray and lean and long and they look like the fighters they are.

No space is wasted. The Georgia Tech boys bunk forward, the crew in an after hold. There is ventilation to all parts of the ship, fresh air pumped there.

The wardrobe and officers' quarters are under the bridge just below the main deck. Have a look at the one occupied by Dr. Milam and your landlubber correspondent. There is a double-decker bunk. There is not much room between the steel top of the compartment and the top bunk. And that steel pipe makes it even less. There isn't much more room between the top and lower bunk.

There is a wash bowl which folds back against the wall when not in use. There is a huge water bottle to supply running water. There is a small section for shaving brushes and so on. And a small mirror. On the other side are two sets of drawers and a writing table that folds down from the wall. It's all steel and there isn't much room.

The wardrobe is the place where the officers eat and lounge when off duty. There is a radio there. And books. It is called the wardrobe because years and years ago the junior officers of an English ship found an old deserted wardrobe and used to meet there. Now every ship of every nation has its wardrobe.

The boys eat in their huge compartment in which the bunks are arranged in tiers of three, and which may be folded back when not in use. The long, polished hardwood table becomes a dining room table at meal-time and a writing or reading table in between.

The rest of it is room for guns and engines—mostly engines—and torpedo tubes and racks.

There is constant radio communication for every minute of the day.

And there is a trimness and spirit about destroyers that makes them great places to be.

A LITTLE FOOTBALL

Before going to ship last night met George Butler, well-known Savannah citizen and the first quarterback to play at Georgia Tech for the late John Heisman. He played in 1904, 1905 and 1906.

And in 1904 he ran 140 yards for a touchdown against Georgia.

"I'll never forget it," he said. "I was in Atlanta for a game last year and was talking with Rybun Clay. And Clay said, 'George, the game I remember best is one in 1904. My brother tried to kick a field goal and some fool Tech boy caught the ball behind the goal line and ran for a touchdown. Do you remember it?' 'Did I remember it?' I said, 'I was the fool boy that caught it.'"

Tech won that game by a large score. It was a curious coincidence that two of the south's greatest coaches appeared at leading southern institutions in 1904. The late Dan McGugin came to Vanderbilt that year.

A LITTLE DEED

Last year your correspondent prevailed upon the ship's officers to join him in having put aboard three cases of a well-known soft drink. This year the company arranged to have five cases put aboard. When they arrived Lieutenant Fulton grinned and said: "You started something last year. Ever since you introduced us we have been selling it at the ship's store and have just bought 60 cases for this cruise." So shines a little deed in a great world.

AND SO TO SEA

And so, your old partner will climb into the upper bunk and call it a day. He will watch faithfully over the boys whose mothers asked that he do so and will be three weeks away with stops at Puerto Rico, Cuba and Jamaica. Meanwhile a number of very excellent friends and writers will supply a few guest columns. I know you will like them.

being rushed to completion, Jacobs was beaming with happiness. "By the time the box office closes tonight I figure to have $700,000 in the strong box," he said. "There's plenty in there now; it will be all right with me if we don't sell another ticket."

Easing their opinions on controversial predictions, the experts figure that Tuesday night's battle will draw between 60,000 and 70,000.

The Brown Bomber looked faster and better than he has in any drill except last Tuesday's. Hardly a punch was laid on his face by his three sparring partners.

Louis, reaching his fighting peak as timed for his big chance, will work out Saturday and Sunday, but Trainer Jack Blackburn said today's was his last serious drill. Blackburn was well satisfied with Louis' condition. The Bomber, scaled in at 199 1/2 pounds today, approximately the weight he plans to make for Braddock.

RAINWATER LOSSES.

An Atlanta, Crawford Rainwater, the Emory University captain, succumbed to a noon rainstorm that preceded the afternoon gale best against his glasses so hard that he had to remove them and play out his match. Rainwater held a two-up advantage through nine holes after an out-going, three-hander par 34, but was beaten 3 to 1 by Walter Cushman, of Charlottesville, Va., who settled down to par shooting on the incoming side.

Cushman caught Jeff Owens, of Hickory, N. C., in a second-round match and had him three up through nine holes when their match was washed out. Owens rallied from a two-down disadvantage at the turn to beat Lew Oehmig, of Chattanooga, Tenn., one up, in a first-round tussle. Four other matches of the opening round were upset.

Bill Williamson Jr., of Charlotte, cut down a three-up margin to trounce Lewis Johnson Jr., of Charleston, S. C., 2 to 1. Johnson, the Carolina champion, fell victim to the early rains.

Two of the oldest competitors in the championship division, A. P. (Polly) Boyd, of Chattanooga, 36-year-old, and Judd Brumley, of Greenville, Tenn., who claims he is only 38, came through with flying colors and were unworried by the downpour.

BREAK O' DAY

housekeeper who fancies herself neat could learn things from the destroyers.

They are gray and lean and long and they look like the fighters they are.

No space is wasted. The Georgia Tech boys bunk forward, the crew in an after hold. There is ventilation to all parts of the ship, fresh air pumped there.

The wardrobe and officers' quarters are under the bridge just below the main deck. Have a look at the one occupied by Dr. Milam and your landlubber correspondent. There is a double-decker bunk. There is not much room between the steel top of the compartment and the top bunk. And that steel pipe makes it even less. There isn't much more room between the top and lower bunk.

There is a wash bowl which folds back against the wall when not in use. There is a huge water bottle to supply running water. There is a small section for shaving brushes and so on. And a small mirror. On the other side are two sets of drawers and a writing table that folds down from the wall. It's all steel and there isn't much room.

The wardrobe is the place where the officers eat and lounge when off duty. There is a radio there. And books. It is called the wardrobe because years and years ago the junior officers of an English ship found an old deserted wardrobe and used to meet there. Now every ship of every nation has its wardrobe.

The boys eat in their huge compartment in which the bunks are arranged in tiers of three, and which may be folded back when not in use. The long, polished hardwood table becomes a dining room table at meal-time and a writing or reading table in between.

The rest of it is room for guns and engines—mostly engines—and torpedo tubes and racks.

There is constant radio communication for every minute of the day.

And there is a trimness and spirit about destroyers that makes them great places to be.

A LITTLE FOOTBALL

Before going to ship last night met George Butler, well-known Savannah citizen and the first quarterback to play at Georgia Tech for the late John Heisman. He played in 1904, 1905 and 1906.

And in 1904 he ran 140 yards for a touchdown against Georgia.

"I'll never forget it," he said. "I was in Atlanta for a game last year and was talking with Rybun Clay. And Clay said, 'George, the game I remember best is one in 1904. My brother tried to kick a field goal and some fool Tech boy caught the ball behind the goal line and ran for a touchdown. Do you remember it?' 'Did I remember it?' I said, 'I was the fool boy that caught it.'"

Tech won that game by a large score. It was a curious coincidence that two of the south's greatest coaches appeared at leading southern institutions in 1904. The late Dan McGugin came to Vanderbilt that year.

A LITTLE DEED

Last year your correspondent prevailed upon the ship's officers to join him in having put aboard three cases of a well-known soft drink. This year the company arranged to have five cases put aboard. When they arrived Lieutenant Fulton grinned and said: "You started something last year. Ever since you introduced us we have been selling it at the ship's store and have just bought 60 cases for this cruise." So shines a little deed in a great world.

AND SO TO SEA

And so, your old partner will climb into the upper bunk and call it a day. He will watch faithfully over the boys whose mothers asked that he do so and will be three weeks away with stops at Puerto Rico, Cuba and Jamaica. Meanwhile a number of very excellent friends and writers will supply a few guest columns. I know you will like them.

TWOC CONTRACTS SIGNED BY MILLS

Strikes, Lockouts Barred at Three Plants.

Signed contracts between three other southern textile mills and the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, of which A. Steve Nance is southeastern director, was announced yesterday by Nance from his office here.

Wage increases and employment seniority were provided for in all three agreements, Nance said, and workers pledged themselves against strikes and the mills against lockouts. Differences under the contracts would be settled by arbitration.

One of the contracts, that with the American Thread Mills at Dalton, is expected to end a strike of several months, Nance said.

The other two were with the May Hosiery Mills at Nashville, Tenn., and the Waverly Mills at Laurinburg, N. C.

Nance added that workers have yet to approve the contracts but expressed belief the agreements would be accepted.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 155

"Kill her! Kill her!" Those words burned themselves into Tarzan's heart, for he knew that it might well be Jane who was the object of those murderous shouts. But also those shrill shrieks served to guide his racing feet to the gathering in the throne room.

With Brown not far behind, he quickly reached the doorway. There, rising on his toes to look over the heads of the warriors, he saw two guards seize Jane and drag her to the door. Then the Kavirri king grabbed her by the hair and whipped out his long dagger.

Tarzan burst into the close-packed room and sought to aim his revolver, but the mob of tall warriors shielded his target from harm. Then some of the warriors saw Tarzan. They were seized with terrified confusion. Many tried to gain the doorway to flee.

Tarzan was caught in that milling, hysterical mass. Something struck his wrist. What it was he never knew, whether it was an accident or intentional, but it was powerful enough to make him drop the gun, which clattered to the floor and was swept away.

REVISION FORECAST FOR SANITARY TAX IN 1938 BY MAYOR

Lindsay Calls for Adjustment To Exact Cost of Giving Service.

Revision of city sanitary taxes in 1938 was predicted yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield.

His statement was in answer to an assertion by State Senator Paul L. Lindsay that rates were hiked more than Lindsay was told they would be when the legislature was in session.

"I was told by Alderman I. Glover Hailey that the increase in sanitary fees would not be more than $1," Lindsay said at a meeting of the finance committee yesterday afternoon. "And I was given to understand that general council had agreed on this rate." Charges were raised $2 per 25 front feet in addition to the regular $3 sanitary fee, with the maximum charge for residential owners at $11 a year.

Members of council at the meeting denied they had ever agreed on any set rate before the legislature gave the city the right to fix new charges. Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, said he "had never heard of any agreement."

Lindsay declared that the city's legislation was passed with the definite understanding on the sanitary rate.

"There is going to be a revision by next year," Hartsfield assured him. When the rate was fixed, administration leaders said it was to be adjusted. Lindsay said it should be fixed at the exact cost of giving sanitary service. Hartsfield's answer implied the rate on residents would be lowered if the cost of service was less than the tax charged.

AUTO DEALER INJURED IN BIRMINGHAM CRASH

J. M. Harrison, Atlanta automobile dealer, and Clayton Callaway, a business associate, were injured Tuesday in an automobile collision in Birmingham, it was revealed yesterday when Harrison returned to his home on Wesley road.

Harrison, who suffered a fractured vertebrae, was reported much improved last night. Callaway remained at a Birmingham hospital, however, suffering head injuries. He is expected to return to Atlanta tomorrow.

The accident occurred as Harrison and Callaway were driving to the Birmingham airport to board a plane for Atlanta. A car driven by a woman skidded on a wet street into their vehicle, it was reported.

COUNTY BOARD LOSES IN THEATER TAX SUIT

County commissioners have no authority to levy license or occupational taxes as their powers are purely regulatory, the court of appeals held yesterday in affirming the case of Brooks county vs. Ilex Theater Inc.

Brooks officials sought to levy a $25 license on the theater in Quitman and the owners objected, winning their contention in the lower court. The appeals court yesterday affirmed the trial court's decision.

$975 Check for City Picked Up on Street

A check for $975 was delivered yesterday to Tax Receiver R. A. McMurry at the city hall by a man who found it blowing about on the street.

Made out to the city of Atlanta by the Southern Bell Telephone Company as a refund on signal system charge, the check was mailed in a sealed envelope Wednesday afternoon by a telephone company official, McMurry said he was informed. Yesterday, J. S. Guthrie, of 218 Pryor street, told the tax receiver he found the check without an envelope on a street near the city hall. How it got there and who opened the letter was a mystery. Telephone company officials were investigating.

PLANES ROAR AWAY ON TOUR OF STATE

More Than Two-Score of Ships Participating in 4-Day Flight.

More than two score planes left Candler field yesterday afternoon for a four-day flight to the major cities of the state in the interest of airport development in Georgia. The party roared away from the Atlanta airport in a southwesterly course, on a schedule that call for stops at LaGrange and Griffin yesterday, with Macon as the overnight stop.

Today the party will visit Columbus, Americus, Albany and Moultrie, passing the evening at Valdosta. Saturday's schedule includes Thomasville and McRae, and an overnight stop in Savannah.

Sunday, the last day, the group will head back for Atlanta, with a luncheon stopover at Augusta and visits to Athens and Windsor.

Various Georgia industries are participating in the sponsorship of the enterprise, which is under the direction of Baxter Maddox, Frank K. Shaw, Major Wiley Wright, and Jesse Draper. These officials yesterday expressed the belief that airport development in Georgia will be given marked impetus by the flight.

FOUR COWS DEAD OF POISONED BRAN

County Police Seek Clue to Perpetrator.

Poison, placed in a Fulton county dairy pasture, yesterday was declared responsible for the death of four highly bred milk cows and the sickness of several others in the herd.

The cows, property of Dairyman C. S. Webb, who resides on Roswell road near Sandy Springs, apparently had eaten large quantities of bran in which Paris green, or some similar poison, had been mixed, Dr. J. C. Wright, veterinarian who performed an autopsy on one carcass, said last night.

County police last night were searching for clues to the poisoner. Webb is a brother of County Patrolman Claude Webb. Lieutenant A. T. Butler is leading the investigation.

Dr. Wright said the poison mixture was placed on a rock in the pasture.
